Bloodstains Hint 'Monoxide Murder' in Thelma Todd Death

EVIDENCES OF BATTLE ARE INDICATED

Thirty Witnesses Will Face Quizzing; Police Drop Investigation

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21. (AP)—The county grand jury gathered broken strands of evidence today for an investigation of the strange death of Thelma Todd, but police dropped the case with the opinion—"accidental."

More than 30 witnesses, including filmland celebrities, are being summoned for the jury's first hearing Monday, in an effort to check every known action of the blonde screen comedienne from the moment she left a gay night club party until her body was found 30 hours later.

The police theory of accidental death, which had been expressed in the inquest verdict, was challenged by two others—murder and suicide.

'Monoxide Murder'

George Rochester, grand jury foreman, said he has uncovered evidence indicating the actress was slain by a "monoxide murderer."

Rochester said Pasquale Di Cicco, former husband of the actress, told him by telephone he would return next Friday to aid in the inquiry. Rochester said Di Cicco called him from Smithtown, N. Y., saying he wished to spend the Christmas holidays with his family.

His statement apparently was bulwarked by the report of Tom Cavett, district attorney's investigator, who disclosed he found bloodstains on the running board of Miss Todd's phaeton, in which her body was found in a seaside garage.

Cavett said he believed these

SUSPECT CLEARED

SACRAMENTO. — Clarence S. Morrill, chief of the state division of criminal identification said today: "The fingerprints of Ed Myers arrested in Santa Cruz yesterday, as a suspect in the slaying of Mary Stammer of Fresno, were not the same as fingerprints found in the Stammer home."

ARMY 'INDIGNANT'

TOKYO.—The Japanese army in Manchuria is "most indignant at the lawlessness of Communistic outer-Mongolians on the Manchoukuo border and may be compelled to take adequate measures to ensure the safety of the Manchu-Mongol frontier," a Hsingking dispatch to the newspaper Yomiuri said today.

Religion Is Jovial Instead Of Sorrowful for Modern Youth, Dr. Warmer Asserts

What about Modern Youth? How about their morals—their attitude toward age-old conventions—the way they look at life? What are they doing to help themselves find a niche in this topsy-turvy world, upset by a depression that seemingly has wrecked their ambitions? To find out about Modern Youth in Santa Ana, The Journal sent a reporter, Miss Virginia Smith, on a scouting tour. The second of her five articles about the subject follows.—Editor.

"Young people don't ask Santa Claus for something when they pray today. Their religion isn't like that. It's vital. It has no awe. No area is too sacred to be investigated and tried to see if found wanting."

It was the Rev. Dr. George A. Warmer speaking, fresh from his experiences with 750 young leaders at the Methodist youth conference at Fresno.

"They ask us ministers to tell them the facts of life. To prepare them for marriage so that they can start with their feet on the ground and work upward to get the most out o flife and home."

MEXICO PLOT FRUSTRATED

Uprising Nipped In Bud By Officials; Calles Denies Conspiracy

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 21.—The Mexican government announced today it has frustrated a revolutionary plot in Orizaba, Vera Cruz, industrial center and stronghold of the Laborista party.

Government agents, the department of interior asserted, seized arms and ammunition and arrested six persons here in raids on a house of Luis Morones, labor leader and associate of former President Plutarco Elias Calles.

The department claimed this quick action nipped a new rebellion in the bud. Both Morones and Calles, who returned to the country last week from California, have denied plotting revolution.

Insisting it had discovered rebellious activity, the interior department announced, "however, the movement lacked importance."

Local Laborista leaders at Orizaba added another blow to those already directed at Morones and Calles, notifying the government that the Vera Cruz branch of the party, which Morones controlled through the regional confederation of Mexican workers.

Leaders of other labor organizations completed plans for a monster anti-Calles demonstration here tomorrow, announcing more than 50,000 persons would participate.

LIQUOR STAFF MAY BE CUT

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 21. (AP)—The board of equalization gave Ray L. Edgar, new member from El Centro, the right today to dismiss, if he desired, a group of 18 probationary employes in the Los Angeles division.

Edgar, pointing out that the group would obtain permanent civil service status by Jan. 7, said his action should not be construed as meaning there would be any changes, but he wanted to be in a position to make them if he finds it necessary.

OUSTER GAINS FOR KUCHEL

Petitions With Added Names Presented In Recall Fight

Backers of the recall movement against Justice of the Peace Charles Kuchel of Anaheim today had made another spurt toward the goal of 1246 names required for their recall petitions.

Slowed up 10 days ago when the petitions failed to show enough qualified signatures, the recall movement gathered momentum and names during the interval, and late yesterday Alva Hargrove filed supplemental petitions with County Clerk J. M. Backs, containing 290 additional names. Yesterday was the last day on which supplemental names could be filed.

Opponent In Race

Mr. Hargrove was an unsuccessful opponent of Judge Kuchel at the last election. He has been assisted by Louis Heffner in the recall activity.

The original petitions contained 1304 names, but after those which failed to qualify were removed, the remainder was 1034. The 290 additional names filed yesterday bring the total to 1324.

10 Days to Check

County Clerk Lacks will have 10 days in which to checks the 290 new names. If the petition is then found sufficient, the board of supervisors will be required by law to call the election for recall of Justice Kuchel not less than 35 days nor more than 40 days from the date on which Mr. Backs attaches his certificate of sufficiency to the petitions.

The petitions urge the recall of Judge Kuchel on grounds of incompetency.

KIDNAPED BOY BACK HOME

WOODSTOCK, N. Y., Dec. 21. (AP)—Caleb Milne IV, returned today to his mother's home in Woodstock. Pale and limping, the youth was helped out of an automobile by G-men who accompanied him on an automobile trip home from the hospital in Doylestown, Pa. He showed visibly the effects of his days in the hands of supposed kidnapers.

PRISON BREAK PLOT FOILED AT UKIAH

Huntington Beach Youth Who Slew Brother Near Freedom

Ivan Apple, 18, confessed slayer of his brother, Roscoe, a year ago at Huntington Beach, was one of 300 inmates of the Mendocino home at Ukiah for the criminally insane who came near to liberty in a prison break plot, it was revealed today. Dr. R. A. Cushman, formerly of Santa Ana, and now superintendent of the institution, told the Associated Press today that the scheme to escape was thwarted by discovery of the four ring leaders.

Young Apple was not one of the ringleaders, but he would have been liberated if the plot had succeeded.

Plotters Named

Dr. Cushman said the plotters were Martin Flynn, Oakland machine gun bandit; Harry J. Dunlap, Los Angeles bandit; Seward Hallingshead, San Mateo county burglar, and Frederico Garico, San Francisco convict. The quartet was transferred to San Quentin.

Young Apple killed his brother, Roscoe, with a shotgun last Dec. 26 at the family home in Huntington Beach while other members of the family were away. He gave himself up at the Huntington Beach police station. Later he underwent a sanity hearing and was committed to Mendocino last Feb. 11.

Charge Not Pressed

A murder charge filed against the boy was not tried, but if he recovers his sanity he will be subject to trial.

Dr. Cushman was for 35 years a promient physician here. He once was chairman of the Orange county Republican central committee. About four years ago he was appointed to his present position by the late James Rolph, jr., then governor.

16 INDICTED IN POLICE PROBE

ST. PAUL, Dec. 21. (AP)—A county grand jury today returned 16 secret indictments upon completion of an investigation following a police department shakeup.

The jury cleared on charges of malfeasance M. J. Culligan, who resigned as chief of police after an investigation; former Inspector James Crumley, who was ordered discharged; Fred Raasch, detective who also was dismissed; and Charles J. Tierney, former detective inspector who was suspended and later reinstated as assistant inspector.

The report recommended the police department be removed from politics.

DEEMS GIVEN BEVANS JOB

Long Beach Man Named Registrar Of Motor Vehicles Today

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 21. (AP)—Ray Ingels, director of motor vehicles, appointed Howard Deems, Long Beach, to the $5000 a year job of registrar of motor vehicles today.

Deems was ranked third in a civil service test and he will succeed Russell Bevans, appointed by the late Gov. Rolph. Bevans failed to place in the examination for the job, which was put under civil service by a new state law.

Paul Mason, technical advisor to Ingels, ranked second in the examination and John Farley, Oakland, former executive officer of the fish and game commission, ranked first.

The director was permitted to choose the registrar from the three highest applicants.

Deems has been in charge of the Long Beach office of the department of motor vehicles, formerly was a newspaper man in Southern California and is a graduate of Stanford university.

CLIPPER TAKES OFF FOR GUAM

MANILA, Dec. 22 (Sunday.) (AP) The Philippine Clipper seaplane took off for Guam island at 2:39 a. m., today (11:39 p. m., Saturday, Santa Ana time) on its return flight to Alameda, Calif.

The great plane carried a crew of nine, four passengers and thousands of letters and Christmas parcels.

NO ACTION IS PLANNED BY PROBERS

Find Nothing Tangible In Testimony On H. B. Tideland Situation

Supervisor N. E. West's Huntington Beach "Teapot Dome" scandal has blown up as far as the grand jury is concerned.

The grand jury has investigated charges of scandal in connection with recent oil legislation affecting state tideland oil at Huntington Beach and has closed the investigation. It is all over. No facts or evidence were brought to light which the grand jury feels warrants any further study.

Mr. West, who predicted that the beach city oil situation would develop into another Teapot Dome scandal, and also said several state legislators interested in the matter had admitted they were controlled by "big business," testified this week before the grand jury for an hour. After he was through, the grand jury, it is understood, felt that it had nothing tangible on which to work.

It also is understood that the grand jurors discussed the matter of having a transcript of Mr. West's testimony made for future reference, but decided there was

Joe Louis Denies For Tenth Time That He's Dead

CHICAGO, Dec. 21. (AP)—For the tenth time in three months, Joe Louis, sensational Negro heavyweight boxer, today denied reports that he had been killed in an automobile accident.

No one was allowed to see the "Brown Bomber," but a giant Negro policeman, stationed outside his door, conferred with him and then came out to announce that Joe had just eaten a hearty breakfast.

KING WINTER ON THRONE

Cold Spell Results In 12 Deaths; Below Zero In Some States

CHICAGO, Dec. 21. (AP)—King Winter held a shivering nation in his palm today after ascending his throne one day before his cue from the calendar. Twelve deaths indirectly due to the weather preceded the coronation.

Today saw the official beginning of winter, the shortest day of the year, but yesterday's frigid wave already had given most sections a taste of winter weather.

Generally moderating temperatures were predicted for the weekend. Accompanied by cloudiness and occasional snow flurries in the northern states.

Mercury Goes Under

In South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota, the mercury slid below zero and from Illinois almost to the eastern coast roads were ice coated. From the Rocky mountains east and from the Canadian border to below the Mason-Dixon line minimums for the year were chalked up generally.

Warmer weather was east bound from the western plains, where the mercury was up in Nebraska, Montana and Wyoming.

Wide Contrast

North Dakota's temperatures ranged from 28 in the west to 4 in the east and Minnesota was generally above zero in the south, although still below zero in the northern sections.

Wisconsin faced more cold, however, and after one lake boat arrived six hours late last night several others canceled scheduled sailings.

A weather bureau survey showed temperatures had moderated in the north and central great plains states and the northern Rocky mountain area.

MAN, 110, TRIES TO KILL SELF

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Dec. 21. (AP)—Police of the village of Tchepelare reported today that Ussouf Karaibrah, aged 110 years, had become tired of life. Karaibrah, they said, tried to kill himself with a rabbit gun. His aim was bad. He will keep on living.

SCHEDULE IS EFFECTIVE ON FEB. 15

15 Per Cent Reduction Is For Combination Service Consumers

Orange county consumers using natural gas for cooking, automatic water heating and space heating received a Christmas present today from the Southern Counties Gas company, which announced a 15 per cent reduction in the combination rate.

District Manager Fred Merker, in announcing the move, stated that the reduction would apply to all consumers using the combination service on the balance of bills over $2, and up to $25.

Effective Feb. 15

The reduction will become effective Feb. 15 throughout the territory served by the Southern Counties Gas company. Announcements will be sent to all consumers in the district together with their next gas bills, Mr. Merker said.

Today's announcement of the reduction followed action of the state railroad commission in approving the step, which was a voluntary action by the Southern Counties Gas company, and two Los Angeles companies.

Cut Is Voluntary

"The officials of the three gas companies place this new schedule in effect voluntarily for their consumers who make full use of natural gas in their homes," President Leon O. Whitsell of the commission said today, in announcing the reduction to the Associated Press.

"The rate will be available on written application, and will amount to a discount of 15 per cent on that portion of the monthly bill in excess of $2 and up to $25."

The reduction will total $1,250,000 a year in the districts served by the three companies, it was stated.

PARDON GIVEN COUNTY MAN

Edwin S. Allen, Orange county man who was convicted of statutory assault in 1922 and sentenced to San Quentin, today received his best Christmas present.

He was given a full pardon by Gov. Frank Merriam. Allen was convicted on May 2, 1922, and sent to San Quentin on May 5. Alex P. Nelson was district attorney at that time.

MAN DISABLED BY BROTHER

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Dec. 21. (AP)—Clyde Cooper, 33, former inmate of a state insane asylum, was held today for a crude emasculation operation performed on his 35-year-old brother, Bob Cooper. Hospital attendants said the victim's condition was dangerous.

The attack occurred in front of Bob Cooper's home. He was knocked down and slashed with a long handled knife while his screaming wife and two neighbors stood by powerless to intervene, they said.

Huntington Beach Rain Prophet Says Downpour is Due on Dec. 24

Everyone likes to talk about the weather. Here is your chance to talk about weather to some advantage to yourself.

Predict the day and hour when the next two-inch rainfall starts in Orange county, and The Journal will give you a new umbrella. If your prediction brings on a two-inch rainfall you will need the umbrella.

Yesterday you read how Weather Forecaster J. H. Trickey, Orange, reaches his conclusions. Today we present Martin G. Murray, amateur weather prophet of repute, Huntington Beach.

Unlike Mr. Trickey, who bases his predictions on the position of the planets in relation to the earth, Mr. Murray establishes his figures by use of rainfall charts and tables, extending back to 1877.

The 1936 season will be the peak wet season of the 24-year cycle observed in Orange county, Mr. Murray says. Mr. Murray also forecasts a "big" rain for Dec. 24, as well as on Jan. 6 and 20.

Besides his charts, which are accurate and tend to show a definite rainfall cycle, Mr. Murray has a homemade telescope with which he observes the revolutions of the "nodes" of the moon.

To get in on this contest and outseer the local prophets you need no such paraphernalia. Just guess, predict or foretell the day and hour when the next two-inch rain will fall. Call, mail or bring your predictions to The Journal Rain Editor, at The Journal offices.

Mr. Trickey, whose prediction was made yesterday, informs us that the next two-inch rain will commence falling on Feb. 2 at 1:30 a. m. Martin G. Murray says we have a big rain due Dec. 24.

R. D. Flaherty, Orange County Farm bureau, says Jan. 1, at about 3 a. m.

Ralph Smedley, Y. M. C. A., says: "Here's a prediction that will win. I predict that we don't get any two-inch rainfall here this year."

Mel Salveson, 420 East Fourth street, says Jan. 10, at 4 p. m.

Gerald Bower, Box 327, Tustin, says Dec. 25, at 3:30 p. m.

Reporter Finds True Christmas Spirit Among Yuletide Shoppers

By BOB GUILD

"Christmas spirit," they said. "Now if you want a story on Christmas spirit the thing to do is to go where the spirit is where people are getting ready for Christmas—out where they're buying Christmas presents."

So we walk down Fourth street looking for people buying Christmas presents.

That Mexican girl, for instance, with $2 tightly wadded in her hand, looking at men's cigaret cases. The table is littered with cases. Her $2 doesn't look as big as before she came in.

This one costs too much, this one is leather. ("He wants a silver one, with his initials"), this one is black, this one . . .

"I think I'll wait," she says. "I'll look around some more." She walks out to her old car and sits down. She thinks hard for minutes. Then she nods her head and drives resolutely off.

Or in the toy basement. "A train," the young man says, "for my boy." Proud, like that. "We can't afford an electric train this year, but we want a good one, with lots of track."

Trains are just what this store has. Streamlined trains, old-fashioned trains, big trains and small trains. Guaranteed to run. He picks one out, with an engine that flashes fire as it goes around curves.

"Say," he says, "only 12 pieces of track? We want lots of track. My boy will want a train that will run anywhere. You couldn't keep that boy busy with a train that has only 12 pieces of track."

That smallish fellow over there

MUSSOLINI SPURS ROMAN LEGIONS TO NEW ACTION IN AFRICA

BRITAIN ASKS MORE HELP; BLACKS WIN

Ethiopians Capture 10 Fascist Tanks And Re-Take Two Cities

(By the Associated Press)

Premier Mussolini of Italy directed his Blackshirt troops to proceed with their campaign of conquest in Ethiopia today and Great Britain again took up the challenge to "sanctionist" nations with a war-like appeal for aid.

The Italian dictator, scorning to reply to the now dead Franco-British proposals for peace, posed his "unshakably united" people against the "disorganization and contradictions" of the nations seeking to penalize him for taking up arms against Ethiopia.

Chamberlain Speaks

At Birmingham, Eng., Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer who has been mentioned widely as a possible new foreign secretary, told an audience of conservative party workers:

"I trust the nations of the league will show that they are prepared to make themselves resist any attack which may be made on any one of their number."

Thus were th lines drawn taut for a resumption of the explosive-filled economic battle between the League of Nations, under British leadership, and Italy over the question of aggression in East Africa.

Ethiopians Win

An Ethiopian government communique issued at Addis Ababa said the vanguard of Dedjazmatch Ayelu's troops on the northern front recaptured Enda Silasi, 30 miles west of Aksum, and Dega Shah, from the Italians.

"The Italian losses were considerable," said the communique. "Our troops captured 10 tanks." The action occurred six days ago. The two villages are about 35 miles northwest of the Takkaze river site where a bitter three-day battle was waged early this week.

Italy's northern army concentrated on cleaning up "trouble spots" in that sector, from which Ethiopians were reported withdrawing.

In token of Premier Mussolini's determination to defy the league—which means Great Britain in particular — the Fascist grand council issued a communique after a meeting with Il Duce asserting Italy is confident of victory. Mussolini dispatched 4000 additional militiamen and 800 workmen to East Africa.

EX-SUPERVISOR SUICIDE

SAN JACINTO, Dec. 21. (AP)—John Shaver, 81, former dean of county supervisors in California, was found dead yesterday in his automobile in what officers pronounced a suicide. Exhaust fumes had been piped into the machine authorities reported.

indicated the actress struggled for life, almost got out of the machine, and then fell back unconscious.

Although discounting the murder theory, Deputy District Attorney George Johnson gave added consideration to the possibility of suicide in helping the jury with its probe.

"It seems too difficult to believe Miss Todd went to that garage and started the motor of the car to keep warm," Mr. Johnson said.

A dramatic midnight test by the district attorney's office to determine one hazy circumstance in the case—whether the actress walked up 27 steps from her sidewalk cafe to the garage and her death—was disclosed.

A woman operative, of Miss Todd's physical proportions, and dressed similarly in furs, evening gown and dainty slippers, climbed the steps.

Slippers Not Scuffed

Her slippers, compared with those of Miss Todd, showed that the latter's were not "scuffed" enough to indicate she made the long, steep climb, investigators reported.

"And if she didn't walk to the garage how did she get there?" Johnson asked. "No one has come forward to prove she did walk there."

Grauman Called

Roland West, former film director and partner with Miss Todd in her cafe, who testified he locked her out of her adjoining living quarters Sunday morning, also was subpoenaed, as was Sid Grauman, Hollywood showman, who made a 2 a. m. call to West for Miss Todd at the Trocadero.

Six persons, meanwhile, have offered indentifications the actress was still alive late Sunday, long after the dawn hour estimated by police on the basis of the autopsy report.

Both police and the district attorney's office indicated they doubt the identifications were correct.

Capt. Bert Wallis of the homicide detail and Chief of Detectives Joe Taylor said they had closed the police investigation. They declared all the evidence uncovered so far showed Miss Todd died accidentally of carbon monoxide poisoning soon after her return from the Trocadero Sunday morning.

MORE ABOUT OIL PROBE

no need for preserving this record.

Before hearing Mr. West's testimony the grand jury also heard from Orange county's state legislators, Senator N. T. Edwards of Orange, Assemblyman James B. Utt of Tustin and Edward Craig of Brea, speaker of the assembly. These three men were at Sacramento while Huntington Beach oil legislation was being considered.

Mr. West's predictions regarding a Teapot Dome scandal were made while the oil controversy was on at Sacramento. He himself had been there on several occasions. Mr. West favored a bill which would have permitted island drilling at Huntington Beach by the Gilmore Oil company, to tap the state's oil pool. The bill which finally passed provided for whipstock drilling from Standard Oil company property along the bluffs. Governor Merriam refused to sign the bill. Each bill provided for royalties to the state and Huntington Beach for oil taken.

No Probe Yet

During this controversy, statements flew back and forth from Mr. West and Senator Edwards. Each said he favored an investigation by legislative committees. Senator Edwards has urged a senate committee of which he is a member to probe the matter, but it has avoided the issue. Senator Culbert Olson, Epic leader, is chairman of this group.

Mr. West said he would ask for a federal investigation, but so far as is known none has been launched.

Beach People Wanted It

Senator Edwards reported a conversation at Sacramento in which state officials heard proponents of the island drilling bill say it would cost $40,000 to put their measure across.

The grand jury investigation was asked for by residents of Huntington Beach, including Mayor T. B. Talbert, who felt that the charges of scandal should be probed and aired. Senator Edwards supported the request for the investigation.

BLIND SENATOR BETTER TODAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21. (AP)—The condition of Thomas D. Schall, blind Minnesota senator injured Thursday by an automobile, was reported "slightly improved" today in a bulletin issued by Dr. George W. Calver.

The bulletin said: "Senator Schall's condition is regarded as slightly improved. While unconscious most of the time he rouses occasionally. His condition is still considered very citical, but somewhat more favorable."

One hour later she wed Edgar Allen Rogers, jr., 26, her former husband. She gave her age as 24.

COLLINS ASKED TO FIGHT BILL

Congressman Sam L. Collins, Santa Ana, was to be asked today by the California state board of equalization to lend his influence to defeat of bills in congress aimed at establishing a tax-free principality near Palm Springs, Associated Press dispatches reported.

Mr. Collins and Senator Hiram Johnson will be asked by the state board to fight the bills, it was determined, after Assemblyman John Philips, Banning, warned that the bills might permit the creation of a large tax free colony through the leasing of Indian reservation lands near the desert resort.

Mr. Collins is a member of the United States congressional committee on Indian affairs.

LANDING CRASH INJURES 10

OAKLAND, Dec. 21. (AP)—Ten passengers bound for Los Angeles were shaken up today when a United Airlines plane, arriving from Mills field, landed on one wheel and tipped up on its nose.

Airport officials said the plane's retractable landing gear apparently failed to work. One propellor was damaged and a wing tip torn. The passengers were transferred to another plane and left for Los Angeles.

'IT'LL RAIN AGAIN' SAYS DUST BOWL WHEAT FARMER

TRIBUNE, Kan., Dec. 21. (AP)—Living in the "dust bowl" doesn't worry Simon Fishman, Russian immigrant who built a grain empire on the windswept plains of buffalo grass sod here.

"It'll rain again," said Fishman. "We'll have more photographers here from the east to take pictures of the big piles of wheat we can't jam into the elevators."

Fishman came west nearly 40 years ago. With a pack on his back, he peddled from farm to farm through the Indian territory, Colorado and Nebraska.

He arrived in Greeley county in 1920. There was no wheat and only one tractor in the county. In 1923, the county celebrated "Fishman day"—and there was a three-milé procession of tractors. In 1924, there were 80,000 acres in wheat; in 1930, more than a million bushels were shipped out. In 1931, the figure went to 1,500,000 bushels.

Drought, dust and low prices wheat raising should be abanhave kept down the yields, since, but Fishman scorns the idea that doned.

ONION SMUGGLING TO UNITED STATES IRKS SPANIARDS

VALENCIA, Spain, Dec. 21. (AP) Smuggling of onion seeds to the United States has been protested by the Valencia Onion Growers association.

Exportation of Spanish onion seed was prohibited by decree a year ago after growers here had protested that American crops, grown from these seeds, were causing onion exports to the United States to decline sharply.

Despite the decree there has been a heavy contraband exportation of seeds, the Spanish growers said in their petition for restrictive measures.

They said that the Spanish embassy in Washington reported discovering, labeled as bird-seed, 8,030 pounds of contraband onion seeds on one ship reaching New York from Valencia.

'POUR WINE INTO DANUBE,' ADVISES HUNGARIAN SOLON

BUDAPEST, Dec. 21. (AP)—Stephan Georgey, member of parliament discussing the situation of Hungarian wine growers, suggested that half of the country's annual wine production be thrown into the Danube.

Georgey said the overproduction of wine on account of ever increasing trade restrictions preventing its exportation, has reduced the price to about 2 cents a quart.

If half of the wine were destroyed, he argued, the remaining half could be sold at home for from 6 to 8 cents a quart.

FIERCE KEA BIRDS PREY ON NEW ZEALAND FLOCKS

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Dec. 21. (AP)—New Zealand sheep farmers have asked for government aid in destroying the kea bird, one of the worst pests the sheep farmer must contend with.

The birds alight on the backs of the sheep, digging sharp beaks into their victims until they reach the kidney fat, which they devour.

Thousands of sheep have been killed in this manner each year. The birds previously kept to the higher country, but have of late followed the flocks to the low country.

Since Jan. 1, 1935, the federal government has spent on Hawaii $21,200,000 for construction projects, maintenance of army and navy services and unemployment relief.

SALVATION ARMY FUND FOR CHRISTMAS $900 SHORT

If Christmas is to come to every Santa Ana poor family, kettles of the Salvation Army will have to bulge $900 before Dec. 25.

Last year $1800 was used to distribute food and children's toys to 3325 persons. The need is virtually as great this year, declared Capt. E. C. Gallipo this morning. But so far the fund on hand just tops the $900 mark.

Checks had been mailed to the office for $423.75 until noon today, while the kettle fund amounted to $488.61, about $125 behind last year at this time.

The office also is being used as a clearing house for churches, lodges, clubs, individuals and other organizations giving baskets. Each poor family is investigated and checked before being given a ticket so that not more than one Christmas basket of food and toys is awarded each group.

On Dec. 27 a Christmas program with a tree and presents of candies, nuts and fruit will be given at the hall for 500 children of needy families.

"Christmas spirit always comes to the front to complete the fund," declared the captain. "The world is interested in making his brother happy at the Yuletide season and will not leave one family out of the merrymaking that makes Christmas jubilee time."

Foods, toys and candies will be accepted at the hall for the baskets. Contributors who cannot deliver the gifts themselves are asked to call 2074 and a truck will call for the merchandise.

QUINTUPLETS BORN IN U. S.!

Honors Go to Dog, Not Man

MATTOON, Ill., Dec. 21. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chisholm awoke today to find themselves hailed as the parents of quintuplets.

Reporters, photographers and the neighbors called in high excitement. Finally Chisholm, an auto agency employe, figured it out.

"I wrote my brother in Ventura, Cal., that four boys and a girl were born Dec. 17," Chisholm said.

"But I guess I forgot to say they born to our Spitz dog. We haven't any children, let alone quintuplets."

Scolded For Theft Of $2 Yule Money, Boy Hangs Self

PORTAGE, Wis., Dec. 21. (AP) Harold Millard, 13, caught the Christmas spirit, but he won't buy any presents for his family.

He was found dead, his body hanging in the garage at his home yesterday, but the reason was not known until today when Coroner W. E. Brauer said investigation disclosed the lad took his own life because he was reprimanded for taking $2 from his father's coat to buy Christmas presents for his family—including a shirt for his dad.

The family is on relief.

INCOME TAXES ON INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21. (AP)—December income tax collections were reported today to be running 42 per cent above last year's. Telegraphic advices to the treasury said $225,048,321 had been collected through Dec. 20, compared with $158,918,171 in the same period last year.

ASK REWARD IN LIGGETT DEATH

ST. PAUL, Dec. 21. (AP)—The state senate today passed a bill appropriating $2500 as a reward for the apprehension and conviction of the slayers of Walter Liggett, Minneapolis weekly publisher. The bill was expected to be given quick approval by the house.

BIG SEA CHART PURCHASE MADE BY NEW FREIGHTER

CRISTOBAL, C. Z., Dec. 21. (AP) The largest marine chart order ever filled by the marine division of the Panama Canal was delivered recently to the Norwegian tramp freighter Sonnavind.

A total of 526 charts of ports the world over and 143 pilot handbooks were furnished the new motorship at a cost of $434.90.

Built in Germany, the Sonnavind is now on her maiden voyage.

EX-AVIATOR KILLED

SALINAS, Dec. 21. (AP)—D. E. Jones, 37, former army aviator, Willow Glen, San Jose, was killed last night in the Prunedale section, 15 miles north. Jones' automobile collided with a large truck driven by Elmer Nordhen, 35, San Francisco.

BANDITS ROB COUPLE

VAN NUYS, Dec. 21. (AP)—Three armed men pushed by Edward Nelson when he answered the doorbell last night, threatened Nelson and his wife, and took $2,000 worth of furs and jewelry.

BROTHER FILES WILL CONTEST

Robert B. Cox, Los Angeles, today launched a contest of the will of his brother, the late Blaine Cox who died Dec. 8. The contestant asserted that his brother had been almost constantly under the influence of liquor and that he was not of sound mind when he made the will Aug. 19, 1933.

The will left Robert Cox one dollar and the residue of the estate went to a sister, Mary Cox Emerson, route four, box 360, Santa Ana. Robert Cox, in his contest of the will, asserted that the sister "passively or actively encouraged the decedent in his addiction."

The heirs to the estate valued at $3200 are children of the late Judge J. B. Cox, who brought this city into prominence when he sentenced Bebe Daniels to jail on a speeding charge.

Robert Cox, in his contest, asks that the property be divided equally.

U. S., JAPANESE ENVOYS TALK

LONDON, Dec. 21. (AP)—American and Japanese delegates to the international naval conference arranged a last private talk today while the other delegations scattered for the Christmas holidays.

Norman H. Davis, Admiral William H. Standley and Eugene H. Dooman, Japanese specialist of the American delegation, made an appointment to see Admiral Osami Nagano and Matsuzo Nagai late today.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHOIR TO PRESENT 'WONDROUS STORY'

The First Christian church choir with the assistance of an instrumental ensemble and young people will present a musical pageant, "The Wondrous Story" (Kountz) in the church auditorium tomorrow evening at 7:00, according to Frank Pierce who is in charge of arrangements.

The instrumental ensemble which will assist the vested choir of 20 voices will include Simon Plas, violin; R. S. Briggs, flute; Estaban Rodrigues, cello; Edwin Beisel, clarinet; Miss Beverly Nicks and Mrs. Briggs, piano; and Mrs. Briggs, organ.

Miss Mary Arnold is in charge of the dramatic work. The characters will be Mary, Mrs. Charles Hill, Joseph, Norman Pyatt, the Three Shepherds, J. D. Cobb, Duane Teel, and Herbert Frisbie; the Three Wise Men, John Mills, Lewis Williams and George Berry. Mrs. Albert Raymond will have charge of the make-up and the continuity was written by Miss Flo Scarritt, Orange.

UNITARIAN SERVICE STUDIES TEACHINGS

Christmas services at the Unitarian church tomorrow will consider the teachings about Jesus which were current in the early Christian church. They will be compared with the teachings of Jesus, himself, which were studied last Sunday.

"Did the disciples teach that Jesus was God?" "Did Paul?" "What was the burden of their missionary appeal?" "What did early Christians mean by 'The Lamb of God slain for our sins?'" "What did John mean by 'The True Vine?'" "The Word?'" "When did Jesus and God come to be identified in the minds of Christians?"

Such are the questions which will be considered at the service at 11 o'clock tomorrow, when the minister, the Rev. Julia N. Budlong, speaks on the subject: "What Was Taught About Jesus?"

Christmas eve the junior fellowship will go caroling at 5 o'clock, and return to the church for supper and a Christmas party.

Once again we are in the light and glow of the Christmas story. What a story it is! In a tiny town, in a stall in a stable, under a singing sky, at the end of the way of a wandering star, Jesus the Saviour was born.

For more than nineteen hundred years, the story of Christmas has ravished the heart of childhood and brought rapture and hope to the visions of age.

The Church Universal has ever striven to KEEP CHRIST IN CHRISTMAS. It is the King's birthday. The events of the Nativity call us to worship in the Church of our choice.

We extend, in the name of the Christ of Christmas, our greetings of good will and good cheer to the people of Santa Ana and urge you to attend Christmas Service in Some Church Tomorrow.

LIGHTHOUSE IS COMPLETED AT END OF NEWPORT JETTY

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's Rambling County Editor

By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

HI, FELLERS! The funnies are coming to Laguna pretty soon.

Beach artists are planning their annual ball and frolic on New Year's eve. They've decided on a theme of characters in the comics. Popeye with a can of spinach will be there, it's been promised. Also the Jiggs and Gump families, of national fame. Dozens of Orphan Annies are expected to attend, as well as portrayers of all the other comic roles.

We've been wondering how Tarzan of the apes will get his elephant into the art gallery, where the party'll be held.

Anaheimers aren't so dumb.

They've gained national fame with their city park. People have come from far and near to see the layout and to eat burned buns and singed steaks on summer evenings. The park has been advertised throughout the state as an ideal community setup. It is.

Now they're planning another park. Admitting that the first one is as near perfect as a park can be, they've hired the same man to lay out their latest acquisition, 17 acres at the north edge of town. Ralph D. Cornell, Los Angeles landscapist, will be in charge of coverting a weed-ridden plot near the sugar factory into a sanctuary for visitors who want to burn their own vittles at the picnic fire and who like to spill coffee on a city-owned park table, rather than on the one at home.

If you'll remember, the city had an orange grove. Guess Mayor Charles Mann and the rest of the council got tired of picking the valencias, because they traded the grove for the vacant property, visioning another park. Now they are ready to start in improving the land, with the aid of Architect Cornell and Uncle WPA.

If the new one's as nice as the present park, we're going to borrow a tent and spend the summer there.

Jim Farquhar, in his Huntington Beach News, has a good idea.

Each year he prints his Christmas edition. Each year he honors some outstanding citizen.

This time it's City Clerk Charles R. Furr. The paper's dedicated to him, as an outstanding resident of the community. Here's how Jim ends his salutation to the city clerk:

"A large portion of the 'News' subscribers know this representative Huntington Beach citizen and all who know him will join in echoing these sentiments, cherishing together the hope that the soft light of Christmas Eve twilight will carry back to him a fulsome portion of the kindly thoughts and deeds he has himself bestowed upon others."

Right nice, what? We'll wager that City Clerk Charles Furr's glad he's been kind and considerate for the past 22 years he's lived in Huntington Beach.

Mrs. Van Steenbergh's Boys' Hobby hour gang at Midway City couldn't believe their eyes the other night.

John Peterson, Oceanview teacher, came to give the weekly hobby talk. They knew Mr. Peterson was interested in turtles, but they weren't prepared for the surprise he brought along.

He had a large case—just about as large as one man cares to handle. He opened it and took out two turtles which nearly filled the room.

Then he started taking smaller turtles from his pockets, until youthful eyes nearly popped out. Then he told 'em about his pets, and about the habits of rattlesnakes, which he says aren't gentlemen at all, but old meanies, and about lots of other things.

The hobby hour idea's growing. We hear that fathers of the members are as anxious to come to the meetings as their sons. Don't blame 'em . . . every meeting so far has sounded blamed interesting. The club's going to find it necessary to hire a hall, before long.

Notes to you: We like Robbie Robinson's "Hall of Frame" in his Pacific Skipper, yachtman's magazine printed at Newport Beach. Takalook, sometime . . . Yachtsmen seem to be all agog over racing rules and infractions and some "ganging up" in the Star races at the beach last summer. If you're interested, he seems to have the dope . . . We just learned that a stoic isn't a long-legged bird who's supposed to be a cross between a TWA transport plane and Santa Claus. A stoic, a kind friend has pointed out, is a guy whom you can kick in the shins and he'll only grin. Sounds more like a sissie . . . The same kind friend also advised us that a cynic hasn't anything to do with dirty dishes. Dirty linen, maybe, but no dishes . . . which reminds us, best dishes to you all.

WITHDRAW TROOPS

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 21. (AP)—A joint committee reported to the South Carolina legislature yesterday that Gov. Olin Johnston had agreed to withdraw "immediately" troops who had held the state highway department since Oct 28 and recommended that the lawmakers enact temporary legislation to operate the road bureau.

PLACE LIGHTS IN HARBOR CHANNEL

U. S. Service Establishes Buoys and Markers; Bay Is Illuminated

NEWPORT BEACH. — The United States lighthouse service completed installation of a lighthouse on the end of the west jetty and the installation of signal light channel markers in the harbor and the lights were turned on today.

The steel tower is elevated about 50 feet in the air, on another steel tower and shows an 890-candle power flash for two seconds. There is an eight second period of darkness between flashes.

The service installed two flasher buoys in the main channel entrance. These and other markers in the harbor are illuminated for five seconds and are dark two seconds.

The service also completed setting five stationary markers in the bay.

The government's boat "Sequoia" has been anchored near the entrance from which the work has been directed. Harbor Master Thomas Bouchey has assisted with the work.

Coast L-i-n-e-s

By McDONALD WHITE

The oldest known photograph of Laguna, taken in 1887, is now hanging in the Forest avenue window of Rankin's drug store. The picture was loaned by J. S. Bordwell of Riverside and Laguna.

The photograph obviously stood at the base of what is now Heisler's point. From that position the camera caught the entire downtown district, the back hills, and south to Sleepy Hollow. It is interesting to note that of all the 16 wooden buildings standing at that time, two of them still remain. The rest have long since disappeared.

The old hotel stood on the exact location of the present Hotel Laguna, and its wide verandas, basement bath houses, and peaked roofs stand out as clearly in the picture as in the memories of many Lagunans, Santa Anans and Riversiders. For Laguna was first settled by Santa Ana and Riverside people who came down here in horse and buggies for the summer.

It was a two-day trip from Riverside in those days, and all the supplies had to be brought in as there was no regular store. Fresh meat was procured by buggy riding all the way to El Toro, which boasted the nearest refrigerator. Ice box then! Summer cottages were scarce, and most people lived in tents and liked it.

As proof of this statement, there were only three houses on the board walk. One was where Los Ondas cafe is now, the other two about where the dance hall is located. In between was a solid line of housekeeping tents, all lined up to the board walk. Forty-nine years ago the board walk extended north one block from the old hotel. Later on this ocean front property became the most valuable residential district in town, and was one of the first sections to be built up.

It's something of a shock to compare this picture with the view from the same spot today. What was once a fan-shaped meadow opening to the sea, bare but for a few sparse buildings and tents scattered over the landscape, is now a solidly built-up splash of soft colors and dazzling new white surfaces. And it all happened in 49 years.

They say pictures don't lie, but it is almost unbelievable to see with your own eyes this marvelous change, this transformation from a green meadow to the Laguna of its present proportions. And then—to speculate what another 50 years will produce!

The hills back of town, now covered with homes, schools and churches, were completely bare then, with the exception of one little house. No roads are visible in the picture, only paths. A road wound down into town from Arch Beach. It was a narrow, rutty road, scarcely wide enough for two buggies to pass. A rickety old bridge spanned the bottom of Sleepy Hollow.

In the early days the main road into Laguna was via El Toro, through Aliso canyon, up the coast through Arch Beach to Laguna. That was years before the road was laid in Laguna canyon, from Irvine. It is only in recent years, comparatively, that a highway was put through from Laguna to Balboa. Before this the road went as far as Emerald bay; then it was either walk to Balboa, go around by way of Santa Ana, or stay at home.

Now comes the part of the picture that dates it beyond question. The bathing suits! Two dozen or more of them frolicing in the waves. None of the bathers is clearly outlined because of the distance, but even so, all that can be seen of the people themselves are a few heads and ankles!

Altogether, estimating the total number of people on the beach by the bathing suits, parasols, and dark spots on the photograph, there are from 40 to 50 out sunning and enjoying themselves. In fact, one of the bathers is on a horse. Bareback, too. But not so the bathing suit.

Asked Roy Peacock if he had seen the picture. He hadn't, but showed one of his own taken in 1913. That was the year he first came to Laguna. It was of Forest avenue in its narrow, dusty days. But there were lots of stores then. Peacock's garage shows up plainly in the photo. The tree-shaded nook where Fred Aufdenkamp had his flickering outdoor picture show. The Laguna Bakery run by—well, speak up somebody. Who baked Laguna's bread in those days? You should see the corner of Forest avenue and Coast highway, where the "Amen Corner" is now. They didn't need red iron posts to keep wobbly motorists from careening in the front door then.

We got to talking about all the pictures of old Laguna that must be scattered around various attics gathering dust, and Mr. Peacock said he would be willing to head a committee to collect some of these valuable old photos for preservation.

It was agreed to ask the art gallery for a little corner in which to place a chronological assortment of these historic old photographs where they will be on display for everyone to see. There are not many in existence. And what ones are collected will have to come by donation. If these are worth while saving at all they are worth hanging in the art gallery for the interested public to see.

Mrs. Martin of Honeysuckle Court must have a fine old collection. Also J. N. Isch, H. G. Heisler and many others. The best ones showing various steps of development should be on display in the art gallery. Once they are gone, they are gone forever. A fine exhibit could be gathered from Santa Ana, Riverside, and Laguna.

KIN RE-UNITED AT BEACH

Pair Meet After 27 Years

SEAL BEACH. — After being separated for 27 years, a brother and sister were happily united here this week.

Carl Janes, Seal Beach merchant was amazed when he saw his childhood playmate as she walked unannounced into his place of business here. Both were wreathed in smiles as they talked over their childhood pranks which occurred on the old ranch home in Idaho many years ago.

Mrs. G. Carter and her husband knocked at the door of her brother's home and was recognized by Mrs. Janes, although she had never seen her husband's sister. She recognized her from photographs and also knew her through correspondence.

More than a quarter-century ago Mr. Janes came to the coast from the Idaho home. Mrs. Carter moved to Montana. Both were married and settled in their respective homes until Mrs. Carter decided upon the present visit to the home of her brother here.

BARBER CITY'S PROGRAM TOLD

BARBER CITY.—Sponsored by the Woman's club, residents of Barber City will take part in a Christmas celebration Monday evening.

The Christmas story, told in tableaux and accompanied by music, and recitations and songs by children will be a feature of the program, which is being arranged by Mrs. Alice B. Threader and Mrs. Mae Finley.

A lighted tree, with Santa Claus to distribute gifts and treats to the children will conclude the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Thomas are moving from the Goble house to the residence recently vacated by the John Vander Weyst family. Mr. and Mrs. Vanderweyst are now occupying the home which they recently purchased.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lindman and family, former residents of Barber City, who have been living in Midway City, are returning to take up their residence here about the first of the year. Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Kolburn and Mrs. W. W. Kolburn are taking the house in Midway City now occupied by the Lindmans.

DREXLER LEAVES WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER.—Day Drexler, accompanied by his brother, Fred from the University at Redlands, will leave today for Hanford, where they will be joined by their sister, Mrs. Roger Walsh, enroute to their home at Mill Valley. Mr. Drexler, former owner and editor of the Westminster Gazette, will remain in Mill Valley, to become assistant editor of the Mill Valley paper of which his father is the owner and editor.

The newly organized Mexican Young Ladies' club, with Mrs. Ethel Paulk of the Hoover school as leader, met recently. Three new members have been welcomed in to the club, including Petrinella Garcia, Jssie Argondo and Gavina Argondo.

GIRL RESERVES AT ORANGE HAVE PARTY

ORANGE.—Seventh grade Girl Reserves gave a Christmas party for their mothers last evening in the Y. W. C. A. rooms.

RUSH PLANS FOR FIESTA

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO.—The Capistrano Woman's club is the latest organization to join the local chapter of the Riviera of American association, and will aid in staging the eight-day traditional "sanctuary" and open house, which will start, as a community event, Tuesday evening.

Yesterday afternoon the art section of the club met at the Old Adobe cafe, with Mrs. M. M. Parker hostess. With Mrs. E. A. Nydegger, chairman, members started work on decorating Capistrano's fiesta Christmas tree. Mesdames Aaron Buchheim, Hazel Cady, A. R. Hodson, H. S. Barnes, M. E. Walters, Glenn Bast, William Callis, F. W. Rogers, Amelia Jiminez, T. W. Billips, E. A. Louderback and M. M. Parker are assisting.

Committees for installing, lighting and preparation of the street for the dancing reported that part of arrangements complete. Tickets for the banquet on Dec. 28 were distributed for sale.

ALAMITOS YULE PARTY HELD

ALAMITOS.—When gifts were distributed at a luncheon meeting of the Friends church Missionary society Thursday at the home of Mrs. Dr. R. E. Nida, each member learned the name of her "mystery friend" of the past year.

For the program the hostess told of the Christmas customs of other countries and Mesdames C. A. Shackelford, F. A. Bumgardner and Paul Younger told of the origin of various familiar Christmas songs. In addition Mrs. Younger conducted the devotions. Unusual Christmas games were enjoyed.

Guests present were Mesdames Mattie Haywood, Nettie Younger, Alhambra; Viola Walton, Nola Bowman, the Rev. Charles Moore, Dr. R. E. Nida, C. A. Shackelford, Eugene and Clarence Nida, and four children.

Members present were Mesdames Nellie Amos, Maude Barnes, Elsie Broady, Alice Bumgardner, Eliza Guess, Cora Hansler, Estella Jones, Emma Kearns, Leillah Jones, Nellie Lindley, Ethel McDonald, Lena Miles, Nellie Miller, Grace Mitchel, Grace Morgan, Lena Mosher, Ethel Newsom, Camille Nichols, Alma Nida, Rosa Newsom, Elmer Nichols, Tennie Prichard, Lavina Rice, May Scott, Nellie Benson, Lizzie Morgan, Winifred Shackelford, Agnes Stanley, Effie Swayze, Sarah West and Charles Moore and the Misses Jennie Hoover and Catherine Miller.

SCHOOL GROUP HAS PARTY

OCEANVIEW. — The faculty, trustees, and employes of the Oceanview school held their annual Christmas dinner Tuesday evening. At the conclusion of the dinner hour those present exchanged gifts.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. John R. Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Heil, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Worthy, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Letson, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Elliot, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Payne, Roscoe Bradbury, Paul Beatty, Ralph Clay, Miss Brockman, Ruth Spencer, Edith Spencer, Phyllis Jamison, Helen Schoenberg, Genevieve White, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Moulton, and Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker.

Crocheted Dress You'll Wear Often

PATTERN 5384

A lace dress is the dress for you, and here's why! It's flattering—as only lace can be! It's inexpensive—if you crochet it yourself! It's practical—if you make it of wool for winter or string for warmer days. Best of all—it's easy to make—even a beginner need not hesitate to attempt it. The yoke and sleeves, in a contrasting lacy stitch, are made in one—another simple feature. The sleeves may be either short or long.

In pattern 5384 you will find complete instructions for making the dress shown in sizes 16-18 and 38-40; an illustration of it and of all stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Santa Ana Journal Household Arts Dept., 117 East Fifth street, Santa Ana, Calif.

GOING TO MEET FATHER FIRST TIME

Because New Bedford, Mass., decided it could no longer support eight-year-old John Perreira, the boy faced a 3000-mile journey alone to Hayward, Calif., and the father he has never seen. He is shown with Mrs. Jennie Perry, jobless aunt with whom he lived in Massachusetts. (Associated Press Photo)

COSTA MESANS PLAN PAGEANT

COSTA MESA.—An elaborate Community Christmas pageant, "The Nativity," will be presented at the vesper hour in the Costa Mesa Community church, Sunday. The spectacular and beautiful production is being directed by Mrs. Ruth Erbe, music instructor in the elementary school.

More than 100 children are taking part in the production combined from two pageants by Mrs. Erbe, who also planned the program of music suitable for the occasion.

The sponsoring committee for the event is Henry Abrams, Grow Brown, Ed Bennett, Mrs. Marie Pearce, Mrs. Nellie Long, Mrs. Robert Erbe, the Rev. W. I. Lowe, Raymond Eastman, Bob Briley, Mrs. John Webster and Mrs. Roy Davis.

ROTARIANS IN YULE EVENT

HUNTINGTON BEACH. — The Huntington Beach Rotary club celebrated the Yuletide season with a gay Christmas party at a luncheon in the Golden Bear cafe yesterday noon. A huge Christmas tree and other festive decorations brightened the hall as members and many visitors were present for the annual event.

Joe Bren was in charge of a gay program consisting of numbers by the Newman Trio dancers, Grace Fields, blues singer; Barbara Babs, a toe and tap dancer; and the O'Connell accordian, banjo, and piano trio.

Jack Africa was master of ceremonies. M. M. McCallem and Art Frost were in charge of the program.

ORANGE LEGION EVENT HELD

ORANGE.—About 140 residents attended a party given by the American Legion and auxiliary last night at the legion hall. Following a pot-luck dinner, Lila Bickford sang, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. George Bickford; Lola June Ditchey and Darlene Ashley played violin solos. The latter two were accompanied by Mrs. Dayton Ditchey, who also accompanied group singing.

Kolchak, the Russian admiral, was shot by the Bolsheviks at Irkutsk in 1920.

Baseball Babble

* * * * * *

We're Angry

* * * * * *

We hope you're among the lucky few in Santa Ana who today received their tickets to the Rose Bowl game. The precious pasteboards began coming through the mails this morning. Many will envy you who have 'em but we can't join the sob brigade. Football on New Year's has always seemed too much of an anti-climax so we'll start 1936 watching the bangtails at Santa Anita.

* * *

Baseball may be the farthest thing from your mind at this point, but in these off season days sport scribblers are likely to be caught thinking about the darndest things, if at all.

We were just mulling over the Pacific Coast league situation.

Sacramento, weak sister of the circle since Buddy Ryan stopped poking 'em ove the fence, was to have become a farm for the St. Louis Cardinals. But the news is out today that probably the deal will fall through. At least it is very shaky.

It is just the little things like that that put dark clouds on the forthcoming baseball season.

The league does not yet have something to sell that will fill the grandstands and bleachers. Los Angeles gets two much baseball. So does San Francisco. Both towns have two teams. It has long been our guess and that of others as well, that little could be lost by moving Hollywood and the Missions to new pastures. But the league moguls stick to the ways that have been costing them money for the past two years.

Just recently the owners set out to elect a president of the league. They wanted somebody who would do something. In fact they high-pressured Hy Baggerly out of the job for not doing anything.

Then they elected W. C. Tuttle, who has had little or no experience with professional baseball, as president. Mr. Tuttle, who is a writer for "pulp" magazines, says as his first remark upon election:

"No, I don't know what I'll do. I haven't any new ideas. We'll just have to wait and see what they want."

Baseball on the Pacific coast wants a leader—an aggressor who will show the way and not merely do the bidding of the owners who haven't been guessing too well lately.

This department is angry with the Los Angeles Turf club. This outfit, which will operate the races at Santa Anita, has named races for many Southland cities. There's one for El Toro, Orange and South Gate on the list but nary a one for Santa Ana.

The year 1935, according to an Associated Press poll just completed, was a bell-ringer for athletics. At least for the box-office department of sports.

Led by boxing, all branches of sport showed a healthy gain in cash attendance but sports editors voting on the most outstanding trend in athletics picked the "bringing of college football subsidizing into the open" as the best news.

"There is no longer so much hypocrisy in handling the college football situation," wrote one sports editor whose opinions are widely shared. "Everyone knows there is plenty of recruiting and subsidizing. It's a healthy sign to have it brought out into the open, and, if possible, regulated by reasonable standards."

Short stuff: Eppa Rixey, who spent 21 seasons in the National league, thinks Grover Alexander was the greatest he ever saw on the mound. . . . Thinks Christy Mathewson was pretty good, too. . . . The little fellows who take it on the chin during football season often get revenge when basketball rolls around. . . . Williams bowled over Princeton and Vermont doubled the score on Dartmouth the other night. . . . Add football selections. . . . Coach Clark Shaugnessy, Chicago, names as the three best backs of the college season, Sheldon Beise, Minnesota, Lloyd Cardwell, Nebraska and his own Jay Berwanger.

ROSE BOWL FLASHBACK

THE TOURNAMENT OF ROSES football classic began in 1916, when Washington State defeated Brown, 14-0, with a downpour of rain making a quagmire of the gridiron. Ralph Boone and Carl Dietz scored the touchdowns. On the beaten team was a guard named Wallace Wade, who reappeared twice with victorious Alabama elevens.

Y. M. C. A. FIVE IMPRESSIVE IN DEBUT

Santa Anans Travel To Alhambra For Second Test Monday Night

Santa Ana will cut a fancy figure in Southern California Y. M. C. A. league basketball circles this winter.

This much was certain today, as Manager Quentin Matzen reviewed with enthusiasm the Woolen Mills' crushing victory over South Pasadena, 79 to 22, here last night. The Millers are the city's representative in the Eastern division also comprised of the Orange Concordians, Ontario and Alhambra.

Potential Champions

The Pasadenans are recognized as the "weak sisters" of the new season, yet they extended the Ontario champions, 47 to 33, in the initial round. All of which speaks well for the Santa Anans, who loom as potential champions with Orange.

There were no individual standouts among the Woolen Mills' allstars last night. They all scored.

Sewing up the fray in the initial half with a sparkling 39-6 lead, Santa Ana kept right on playing basketball in the final session, by dominating, 40 to 16.

Ed Stephen tossed in 14 points and Fred Wiemer 12 at forward. Harold Spangler was responsible for 12 at center. The guards, Russell (Red) Sullivan and Joe McChesney, sank 10 and 4.

The reserves, too, were red hot, the Peterson brothers, Clarence and Roy, accounting for 21 digits between them, and Maurice (Buck) White finding the ring for six.

At Alhambra Monday

Skipper Matzen's crew hopes to wade through another opponent at Alhambra Monday night. The Alhambrams lost to Veteran Vic Baden's Orange Concordians in the initial round, but this is no indication of weakness, because the Concordians never have been accused of being set-ups.

The lineups:

EAST-WEST GRID SQUADS ARRIVE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31. (AP) Football's finest yearly collection of collegiate stars assembled in San Francisco today to prepare for the eleventh charity game, New Year's day.

Gridirons from every section in the country contributed one or more of the 44 players who will fight it out on an East-West basis for the benefit of the Shriners' crippled children's hospital.

Easterners Favored

The 22-man eastern squad, with Coaches Dick Hanley and Andy Kerr in charge, was installed the favorite even before arrival. Its personnel includes two members of the 1935 all-America team, Riley Smith, Alabama quarterback, and Dick Smith, 220-pound tackle of Minnesota's unbeaten team.

Minnesota's standard also will be carried by Sheldon Beise, backfield ace, and Vernon Oech, 195-pound end. This year's undefeated Princeton eleven was recruited for two ball-lugging stars, Paul Pauk and Pepper Constable.

Good Combination

For the west, Coaches Orin Hollingbery and Percy Locey called the roll on a squad which, lacking in big names, shaped up nevertheless as gifted with a combination of brawn and speed.

The smallest pair of pants was handed out to Bill (Kayo) Lam, 160-pound University of Colorado halfback whose off-the-gridiron activities include tap dancing and the role of master of ceremonies. Lam and Bill Wallace of Rice Institute are the swift pigskin travelers the west hopes to spring loose at some crucial period of the game.

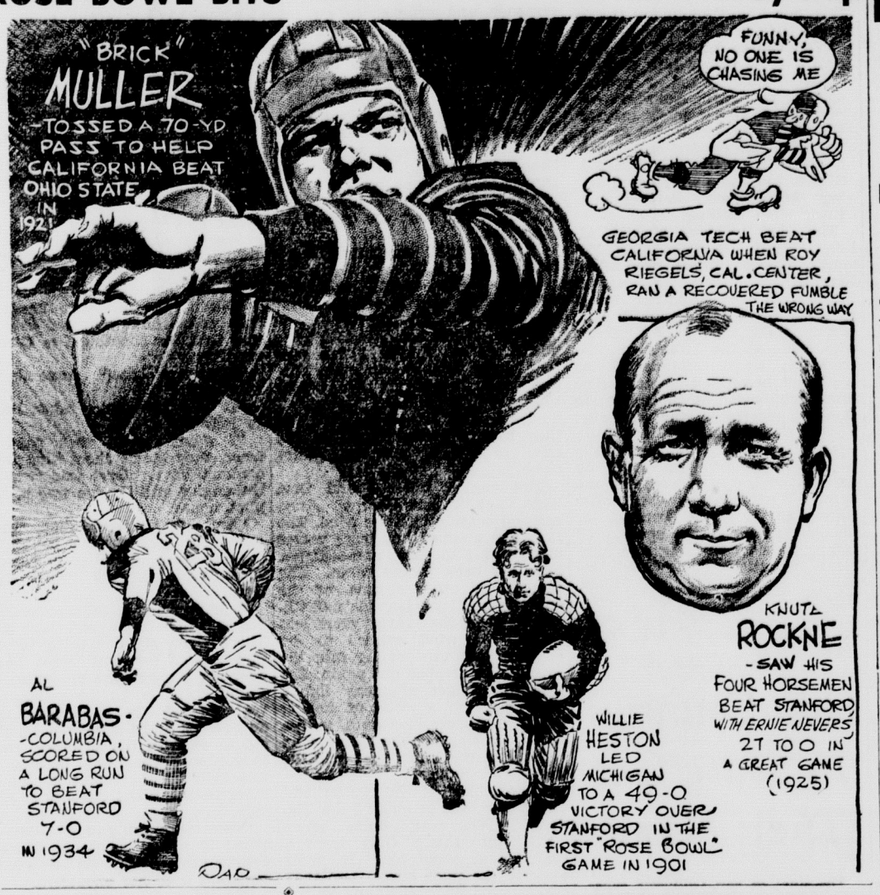

Larry Lutz, California's all-America tackle, will be in the western game.

The day's schedule included a luncheon for the eastern players, given by the Big Ten club; official welcome at the city hall from Mayor Angelo Rossi, a visit with the crippled children in whose cause the game will be played, and a late afternoon informal workout to enable news photographers to get in their licks.

The squads will move to regular training quarters tomorrow, with the easterners stationed working out at the University of California in Berkeley and the westerners drilling at Stanford university.

M'AVOY WINS OVER RISKO IN FIRST

NEW YORK, Dec. 21. (AP)—The British, who have preferred to discuss cricket these many years, are talking of fighting and English fighters again.

Shades of Jim Driscoll and Ted (Kid) Lewis were in Madison Square Garden last night as Jock McAvoy, middle and light heavyweight champion of the empire, unleashed a torrent of leather against Babe Risko, Syracuse, N. Y., world middleweight champion, and knocked him out in 2:48 of the first round. McAvoy sent Risko to the canvas with his first right hand punch. That punch was the beginning of the end for the Syracuse boy who gained his title, which was not at stake last night, from Teddy Yarosz about three months ago.

Risko, startled, climbed back to his feet without a count. The Englishman, his arms flailing like a windmill in a gale, looped over lefts and rights that sent Risko staggering backward and finally down again for a count of six.

Had No Time

Risko waited for the count on one knee, on his face was the sardonic half-grin of a champion who finds himself on the floor before he has had time to throw a punch.

He arose to meet another storm of leather; lefts that came in under and over his wobbling left hand defense and finally induced him to lift his chin for the right hand smash that was the Briton's objective.

Down Three Times

The American went down three more times for counts of three, five and eight before McAvoy pinned him against the ropes and sledged him to the floor for the final count.

Risko, who had climbed to his feet five times, made one futile gesture to rise again, as the crowd pleaded with him to get up.

He couldn't make, however, and he settled back as the referee counted him out.

McAvoy, who made an auspicious start here when he outpointed Al McCoy, Boston, weighed 168½ pounds, 7¼ more than Risko.

MARTIN TO BE RE-APPOINTED

LUTZE TO BATTER DAVIS?

Lifeguard Picked Over Giant

Orange county's wrestling hero No. 1 otherwise Nick Lutze, is likely to put the finishing touches to the giant West Virginia rougher, Wee Willie Davis when they clash at the Orange County Athletic club Monday night in one of the outstanding wrestling "naturals" of the year, fans believe, in spite of the fact that Davis outweighs Lutze 40-pounds or thereabouts and towers far above the bronze former lifeguard.

Davis and Lutze meet in the three-fall, one hour main event with Casey Columbo facing Kiman Kudo, the Japanese champion in the semi. Kudo, billed to wrestle Champion Vincent Lopez in Los Angeles two nights later, must win, or at least get a draw in order to get the Lopez bout.

Milo Steinborn, powerful German strong man, tackles the New Jersey freak, 348-pound Tom Thumb, and Len Macaluso, former Colgate grid star and flying tackle wizard opens the show against rough and tumble Preacher Hogue.

The son of Peanuts, which won more than $100,000 in purses last season, heads a field of 19 nominees including 15 thoroughbreds that have been listed for the Santa Anita $100,000 handicap of Feb. 22.

F. A. Garreaud's Ajaccio, another nominee for the big race, was assigned 116 pounds, with Norman Church's Riskulus third on the list with 113. Top Row's other opponents and their weights were:

Soon Over, Greentree stable, 110; Toro Nancy, Norman Church, 109; Ariel Cross, H. C. Hatch, 108; West Main, Pelletere and Pike, 107; Crofter, H. C. Hatch, 105; Regardless, Mrs. A. M. Creech, 105; Sound Advice, Mrs. A. M. Creetch, 105; Bluebeard, Mrs. R. B. Fairbanks, 105; Bahamas, Oak Tree stable, 102; Dark Winter, F. M. Alger, jr., 102; Mary, Childs and Walker, 102; Ebony Lady, Percy M. Pike, 100; Ann O'Ruley, A. A. Baroni, 100; St. Stephens, Mrs. S. C. Howard, 98; Born Happy, J. S. Riley, 98; Gallaclay, Milky Way farm, 97.

MOSCRIP WILL RETURN TO STANFORD DRILL MONDAY

PALO ALTO, Dec. 21. (AP)—Coach Claude (Tiny) Thornhill believes his Indians are physically fit, and feels that one practice daily will suffice until the New Year's day Rose bowl game with Southern Methodist. The Sunday drill may also be abandoned, he said.

Heretofore Thornhill's charges have been practicing twice daily.

In their late drill yesterday the Stanford players had their first experience with S. M. U. tactics as observed by Thornhill on his recent scouting trip. Intensive study of Mustang plays will be a part of Stanford's drill for the next week, he said. The first team worked at dummy scrimmage against the second team which used Southern Methodist tactics. Halfback "Bones" Hamilton imitated Bobby Wilson of the Mustangs.

Come South Thursday

The head coach plans to work a half hour daily on Southern Methodist's attack so that when the squad reaches Pasadena next Thursday, "they'll know the S. M. U. stuff well enough to run it easily—almost automatically."

All-American Fullback Bobby Grayson, out with a cold for a few days, put on a uniform yesterday and ran signals with the team. Left End James (Monk) Moscrip, however, will not appear on the practice field until Monday, Dr. Frotz Roth said.

"If Moscrip can play one quarter of hard football in the game we will be thankful," Dr. Roth said. He remembered, though, how quickly Halfback "Bones" Hamilton rounded into form before the "big game" with California Nov. 23, and said Moscrip has almost the same chance for improvement.

Loses 10 Pounds

Moscrip has a badly torn cartilage in his left knee. He was fitted for a facial mask to protect his broken jaw and also a knee brace. He has not practiced for the past month and has lost 10 pounds.

Hankinson Affair With Cancella Stopped In Opening Round

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21.(AP)—The California boxing commission was expected to begin an investigation into the hurriedly-halted Hank Hankinson-Tony Cancella heavyweight fight.

Referee Jack Kennedy stopped the bout in the second round last night at the Hollywood stadium, abruptly announcing:

"I refuse to be a party to a fight of this kind, and I declare it no contest. That man (pointing to Cancella) was deliberately trying to get hit in the first round, but wasn't able."

The pudgy 197-pound Cancella, from Tampa, Fla., had been floored in the first by a whistling right behind the ear, and four more times with straight rights to the face before the bout was stopped. Although wobbly at the last, he took no count with each knockdown.

Suey Welch, manager of Hankinson, charged that Cancella had been floored by an amateur in training and a boxing inspector was present at the time. He said the sparring partner was "Wild Bill" Boyd, sailor on the U. S. S. Idaho and a finalist from Seattle in recent Golden Gloves tri-city matches here.

"What was my fighter to do?" Welch demanded. "He gets a black eye and was in no way to blame. Of course Hankinson can beat Cancella. Cancella is a 'washed up' fighter and the commission should not have let this fight go on."

Fans were told by Promoter Charley McDonald to keep their ticket stubs pending action by the boxing commission.

BELL ANNEXES AT OAKMONT

GLENDALE, Dec. 21. (AP)—Art Bell, Riverside professional, and John McCorckle, his amateur partner, owned the Southern California amateur-pro golf title today.

They earned it yesterday at the Oakmont club when they put together a best-ball score of 64, seven strokes under par, to lead an impressive field of players in the prelude to the open championship which starts today.

Saints May Cop Major Division

Acid tests awaited Santa Ana's Saint basketball varsity, as Huntington Beach's seventh annual Southern Counties Invitational went into the semi-finals and finals in the Oiler's spacious gymnasium today.

Encouraged by their remarkable feat in drowning the Seahawks of Redondo, 26 to 24, with a wild flourish in the quarter-finals, Reece H. Greene's promising preps were to battle Compton's small but fast Bay league collection at 2 p. m. for the honor of playing Pasadena Muir-Tech or Chaffey for the championship of the major division at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

SANTA ANA'S GREENE

Chaffey Beats Anaheim

Checking everyone except Nolan Beat, all-around athlete who annexed 12 points for the Colonists, Chaffey of the Citrus Belt league eliminated Anaheim, 33 to 30; and Muir-Tech of Pasadena proved too much for little Excelsior, 34 to 9, in quarter-finals of the major division yesterday.

"Judging from their respective showing against Anaheim and Excelsior, I believe Chaffey and Pasadena are about on a par," Coach Greene of the Saints said. "We stand an excellent chance of winning if we eliminate Compton in the semi-finals."

That Huntington Beach, the sponsor, will successfuly defend its intermediate championship was indicated by the Oilers' striking 40-9 victory over Corona last night. They were paired at 1 p. m. today with Jordon of Long Beach, a five that eliminated Garden Grove, 26 to 16, yesterday. Orange and Inglewood Leuzinger were to meet in the other intermediate game, Leuzinger having ousted Newport Harbor 24-12 yesterday and Orange having beaten Downey 20-12 Thursday.

Gil Strother's San Juan Capistrano Cougars entered the final day of competition as favorites in the minor division. Bonita downed Brea-Olinda, 20-16, and was paired today with the Claremont five, who trampled Valencia of Placentia, 35-24. Both games were played yesterday. San Juan Capistrano's next test was to come from Chino, a team that won by default in the first round when illness prevented Laguna Beach from assembling a representative club.

All-star teams in the three divisions will be selected by tournament officials, and individual trophies will be presented along with championship loving cups at tonight's program.

Tway Available

Santa Ana will not be without the services of Larry Tway, aggressive little reserve whose field goal in the last 40 seconds beat Redondo. Tway was to leave for Arizona to spend the Christmas holidays, but has postponed his trip until tomorrow. Coach Greene planned to start against Compton (and in the finals if the Saints are fortunate) his usual lineup of Erwin Youel and Bill Milligan, forwards; Ed Eastham, center; Sam Lockhart and Bill Flood, guards.

GOLF CROWN AT STAKE SUNDAY

Dick Ewert, defending titleholder, and F. E. Farnsworth, king of 1926 play, will settle the golfing championship of the Santa Ana Country club tomorrow.

Survivors of an elimination series with the club's best talent, Ewert and Farnsworth will meet in a 36-hole match. Eighteen holes will be played beginning at 9:30 a. m., and 18 holes beginning at 12:30 p. m.

'RAINMAKERS' TO OPEN SUNDAY

WHEELER AND WOOLSEY IN COMEDY

Extremely idiotic but astoundingly successful efforts of Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey to bring rain to the parched fields of Lima Junction, comprise the theme of "The Rainmakers," new comedy feature which opens tomorrow at the Broadway theater with a second feature, "Without Regret."

"The Rainmakers" is an exhilarating, thrilling satire on science, farming, the railroad industry and even Mother Nature herself. Duststorms, rainstorms, brainstorms, snowstorms and lovestorms sweep in merry, ludicrous disorder through the film.

Bert Wheeler wants to make rain for the farmers so he can make good with the local banker's daughter. Bob Woolsey wants to make rain so he can make good with the banker himself and get his pay. Two villains throw monkey wrenches into the rainmaking machine. But love and "science" combine to overcome all obstacles, including a climatic crash of two dynamite-laden railroad locomotives. With the two funsters in the hilarious picture are Dorothy Lee, Berton Churchill, George Meeker and Frederic Roland.

Combining romance, mystery and stark drama, "Without Regret," a gripping drama of sophisticated love, features a cast headed by Elissa Landi, Paul Cavanaugh, Kent Taylor and Frances Drake. The film deals with the daring problem that faces a woman who finds she has unknowingly married two men.

Short subjects include a cartoon, "Sinbad the Sailor" and World News events.

CLOUDBURST OF FUN

Those idiotic comedians, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, above, are seen as two "scientists" who attempt to bring about a cloudburst for love and money in "The Rainmakers," which opens tomorrow at the Broadway theater with a second feature, "Without Regret," gripping romance.

ADVENTURE FOR TWO

Robert Young and Barbara Stanwyck, above, have adventures galore in "Red Salute," which opens at the West Coast theater tomorrow with a second feature, "Another Face," engrossing film play of a gangster who had his face changed and then turned actor to hide his identity.

'RED SALUTE' WILL OPEN SUNDAY

The hitherto little-known workings of the United States border patrol are revealed in "Red Salute," rollicking romantic comedy starring Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Young, which opens at the West Coast theater tomorrow with "Another Face," picturing the intimate life of Hollywood.

The border patrol of the federal service comes into play in "Red Salute" when a pretty, socially prominent American coed and a young buck private find themselves stranded across the Mexican border and make a wild break for the United States and home with cupid doing the backseat driving and Uncle Sam trailing.

The cast includes Hardie Albright, Ruth Donnelly, Cliff Edwards, Gordon Jones and Paul Stanton.

The story of "Another Face" revolves around a gangster who arranges the slaying of a doctor who changed the killer's original frightful face to a handsome one and then becomes an actor. The nurse who aided at the operation finally penetrates the disguise. Then a press agent, Wallace Ford, tries to capture the gangster while the cameras grind in order to cash in on the news value of the stunt. What happens when police refuse to cooperate because of phoney press gags the agent used before provides thrilling and hilarious situations. The cast includes Brian Donlevy, Phyllis Brooks, Erik Rhodes and others.

Short subjects include a musical, "Sororitie Blues" and World News events.

NEW MYRNA LOY MOVIE TO OPEN CHRISTMAS DAY

Adventure and romance, drama and comedy, are deftly blended in "Whipsaw," strongly reminiscent of "The Thin Man," which brings Myrna Loy to the screen of the West Coast theater next Wednesday, Christmas, in a new hit with Spencer Tracy as her co-star.

"Whipsaw" is a story of "angles." Not only does the locale shift with lightning rapidity from London to New York and thence through many mid-western cities, but the mood and direction of the story shifts almost as rapidly. The plot concerns itself with smuggled jewels, which Miss Loy, as a member of an international ring of jewel thieves, is presumed to have in her possession.

Tracy is a secret service man who attempts to trap her through romantic intrigue. The supporting cast includes Harvey Stephens, William Harrigan, Robert Warwick, Irene Franklin, Lillian Leighton and others.

Specially selected short subjects will include the Pete Smith "Audiscopics," which make it appear as though objects from the screen come hurtling at the audience when special glasses are worn. The theater will supply these glasses to patrons. Other short subjects include a "Popular Science" novelty in color; "Sporting Net Work," a Grantland Rice Sportlite, and World News events.

BROADWAY BILL ENDS TONIGHT

A double feature program at the Broadway theater, with "Whispering Smith Speaks," starring George O'Brien, and "Coronado," gay musical comedy, shows for the last times tonight.

Filled with catchy tunes and bringing two new youthful and talented players to the screen, the musical romance "Coronado" presents Eddie Duchin and his orchestra in the musical background. Romantic leads are taken by Johnny Downs and Betty Burgess. Leon Errol, Alice White, Andy Devine and Berton Churchill are in the supporting cast.

INDICTED FOR MURDER

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 21. (AP)—Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfield was indicted by a Hennepin county grand jury Friday on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the machine gun slaying of Walter Liggett, weekly newspaper publisher and well known editor and writer.

DOUBLE BILL TO END TONIGHT

Theater goers in Santa Ana and vicinity will have the last opportunity tonight to see the thrilling melodrama "Transatlantic Tunnel" and the fast-paced musical comedy "To Beat the Band" when the pictures show for the last times tonight at the West Coast theater.

"Transatlantic Tunnel" is an exciting story of the construction of a huge submarine tube linking the shores of England and America, showing how nations seeking war are frustrated by the power the completed tunnel gives the two great English-speaking countries.

"To Beat the Band" features the funny man of the films, Hugh Herbert, who is teamed with Helen Broderick, beloved Broadway comedienne.

FOUNTAIN SEEKS GOOD PERFORMANCE FOR NEW YEAR'S

Manager Lester J. Fountain of the Broadway theater was making arrangements today to book an entertaining show for the annual New Year's Eve midnight performance.

Arrangements were being made with Hollywood studio officials to secure pre-release of a new feature. The complete program, which will include special merry-making entertainment, will be announced later.

HEPBURN HERE ON DEC. 29 IN 'SYLVIA SCARLETT'

Starring Katharine Hepburn, "Sylvia Scarlett," will open at the Broadway theater on Sunday, Dec. 29. There is a notable cast in the film, including Cary Grant, Brian Aherne, Edmund Gwenn, Natalie Paley, Dennie Moore and Lennox Pawle.

MORE ABOUT YOUTH TODAY

reason for believing in God at all. "Jesus was a human being like us who developed a sense of God to a higher degree because of his complete obedience to the will of God," for 153.

Only two of them thought the missionary program was a "waste of money." None of them had any racial prejudice and 162 thought socialism to be the economic system most compatible to teachings of Jesus. "Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother" wasn't a banal platitude for them. They were out to get security against old age.

"Religion Is Jovial"

"Religion isn't a sorrowful expression for young people," Dr. Warmer said. "It's jovial. Young people are hunting new comprehensions for life and truth."

They're concerned about the practical application of what they believe, Dr. Warmer explained. The group at the conference that discussed liquor didn't ask for prohibition. They wanted government control on a non-profit basis and adequate education on alcohol.

"Delegates to the conference weren't cynical. They are going to get jobs in which they can believe and which they can fulfill in justice and liberty. Business isn't going to mop them up."

They Want Action

"Thou Shalt Not" religion is out for young folks. Theology is not their concern. They want action and a positive faith. Nine tenets that have recently been accepted as the program of the interdenomination youth council of America are: Developing a program of personal religious living; helping other young people to be Christian; assisting in bringing about world peace; working to help solve the liquor problem; helping build a Christian economic order; providing a constructive use of leisure time; being Christian with other racial and cultural groups; preparing for marriage and home life; developing a Christian type of patriotism.

"Young people go to church as much as their elders," believes the Rev. Dr. A. E. Kelly, president of the Santa Ana Ministerial association.

"Going to Church"

"I kept a record during a 'go-to-church' campaign we had at the United Presbyterian church, here, and when the percentages were compiled over a three-months' period, we found the comparison was just about equal.

"I think behavior creeds have certainly changed. I don't approve of a young man smoking or drinking even moderately and I tell that to youths who ask my advice. He, however, is the one who must make the choice — remembering that God is the final judge."

Hypocrisy doesn't exist very much among young people, Dr. Kelly believes.

"All or Nothing"

"This generation of young folks is either all or nothing. They can't recite creeds and formulae without having them mean something positive and being able to accept them whole heartedly."

The minister felt that unfortunately the modern church in a city this size is not the center of home, marriage, education and all the other interests young people have.

"I think our approaches may be somewhat at fault. I can remember one time in my first church, in a little town in the Middle-west, the entire church board sitting around for an evening's discussion quite distressed because one boy, about 12 years old, had gone to Sunday school and not stayed for church.

"I don't think there are any young people who don't believe in God. Some of them act indifferent, but they really don't mean it. One of the most inspirational prayers I ever heard came the other night from a young boy about 17 years old, of parents who were not professing Christians. He had decided for himself that Christian life could offer him happiness.

"Not long ago, a young girl, apparently just a happy-go-lucky young woman, came to me with concern about her prayer life. Those instances, I believe, are indicative of a strong feeling for religion among today's young people."

The generation coming up may have different standards from their fathers, but they're evidently not in the pale of heathenism.

How Counties In State Got Their Names

The story of how California counties derived their names is an interesting part of the history of the Golden State. Believing that the thousands of tourists who annually motor over the state's great highway system would like to know how the counties they visit came by their names, Director of Public Works Earl Lee Kelly has had prepared from state records a series of brief stories of the origin and meaning of the names of the counties of California, including a few salient facts about each county.

SACRAMENTO COUNTY

Created Feb. 18, 1850. One of the original 27 counties, "Sacramento" signifies "Sacrament" or "Lord's Supper." Captain Moraga first gave the name "Jesus Maria" (Jesus Mary) to the main river in what now is northern California, and the name "Sacramento" to one of its tributaries. Later, the main river became known as the Sacramento, while the branch was called El Rio de las Plumas, or Feather river.

Sacramento's county seat, the city of Sacramento, is the capital of California. With its 3883 farms of great productivity, its secondary seaport, airports, three transcontinental railroad lines and hundreds of miles of broad highways, this county is one of the most beautiful and wealthiest sections of the state.

It was on Aug. 12, 1839, that Capt. John A. Sutter, Swiss adventurer, landed with six white men and eight Kanakas at the junction of the Sacramento and American rivers and took possession of a grant given him by Governor Alvarado, Mexican governor of California. His land included a large area of the present city of Sacramento. How he was realizing his dream of empire when one of his men, James W. Marshall, discovered gold at Coloma, and how that discovery caused Sutter's colonists to desert him for the gold fields, how his stock, provisions, tools and wagons were stolen and how, broken hearted, he retired to Mormon island with a few faithful Indians, later to die in the East penniless, is history. Sutter's fort, which he abandoned, today is a famous landmark in Sacramento.

Sacramento county's area is practically all a rich alluvial plain. Surveys have established 28 soil types. The county grows and cans 90 per cent of the world's asparagus, produces 25 per cent of California's celery crop, leads all counties in the state in the production of Bartlett pears, grows one-fifth of the spinach crop canned in California, and produces one-third of the state's crop of canning tomatoes. The annual value of the asparagus crop alone is about $4,000,000. In the Delta region of the county, called the "Netherlands of America," every known American vegetable is grown.

Oranges are produced in Fairoaks, Citrus Heights, Orangevale, Carmichael. Arcade and Folsom, and the county boasts huge fruit and olive crops; ranks third in the poultry industry, and dairying and stock raising are important developments factors. Sacramento ranks sixteenth in mineral production and only Nevada and Amador surpass it in yields of gold.

Sacramento river ranks among the foremost streams in the nation in amount of tonnage carried, but occupies first place in per ton value of cargo. Population, 141,991. Area, 983 square miles.

HIGH COURAGE

by Jeanne Bowman

SYNOPSIS: Anne Farnsworth, who now calls herself Nikki Nielsen, is hurrying to keep the Union Town fishermen from damaging the Farnsworth canneries, and themselves into the bargain. Anne has been cheated of her share in the canneries by Tom Farley and his gang, but she has been asked to help by John Neuman, and she loves John and will do whatever he says. The Sorki boys are telling her how one of the fishermen caught Farley's gang bootlegging salmon, but could not persuade Lee Farnsworth of the fact.

Chapter 33

SHOT IN THE DARK

"He couldn't convince Farnsworth, however, and when Hannula returned and told the crew, they decided it was time to take action. They told some of the fellows who've been losing money all summer and decided to go into action. They went to the canneries first, to get Farley. They were going to force him to go to the traps with them. They missed him.

"John came in about that time, but they were beyond stopping. He tried to reason with them. Seems he's trying to protect the canneries, for some reason.

"Then he sent us after you. Nikki, he said that you owned the canneries."

"That I do?" questioned Anne, bewildered.

"Yes, that's exactly what he said, and he said to tell you that he was ready to prove it."

Anne shook her head. "He's mistaken, but maybe I can pretend long enough and convincingly enough to check them before they get into trouble."

"John said you must, that if they harm anyone they'll be the ones to suffer, not the guilty ones."

The engine faltered and Orvi went back to join George. Anne stepped outside into the wind. The rain had stopped but huge waves dashed over the bow, and sent her hurrynig back to the cabin. She thought of other storms, of the one the night of Lucinda's death.

And then the waves grew less rough, the wind seemed to die away, they were coming into the cove. Anne stepped out again. She saw the flicker of many lights. They were in a maze of fishing boats, gilnetters, trawlers, and a cruiser was nosing the piling of an old wharf, the wharf that held the fish trap building.

Anne looked at the cruiser and closed her eyes in quick pain. The "Ahti." What was it doing there?

"Get into this." Orvi threw a rubber coat about her. He went back to the pilot house, and they maneuvered their way through the boats to a spot near the "Ahti."

A barge was nearby, its surface gleaming with its catch of fish. They'd grown bold, this night of storm, with every other boat off the water during the closed hours. A cruiser was near it, nondescript, but familiar, the one which had cut across the Sorki net.

And the mob spirit was there. Voices rising in anger, then sinking to a low mutter more ominous than anger. Unthinking, unheeding, that single voiced monotone would follow the lead of the most reckless.

A searchlight from the "Ahti" flashed on, outlining the fish trap and buildings. Anne recognized them. It was on the beach near them that John had thrust her behind the thicket when he heard voices.

But what should she do? The platform of the trap wharf would make a stage. She would go there. The "Ahti" was in the way, but she could climb over that.

She turned back. Something whizzed past her face. Simultaneously she heard the report of a gun. She swung towards the "Ahti" and gasped in horror.

On the bow of the boat, waiting to step to the wharf ladder, stood Lee Farnsworth. Behind him black hillside, before him the maze of boats. He looked about, an expression of ludicrous astonishment on his face.

Anne gave a half-articulate cry. That look had changed to pain. The fat figure slumped, fell forward, sprawling over the edge of the "Ahti."

Stunned silence hung over the scene for a moment, then a cry rang out. "Get the man who fired that shot!"

Tom Farley's voice. It came from behind Anne. She felt a boat bump the one she was in, there came a peculiar thud she couldn't identify, then pandemonium broke loose.

Engines started, but riding lights flashed off as though they'd been doused by a universal wave, and in the darkness came a high sharp command.

"Give us a light to carry him back to the cabin."

A single light focussed on the scene. Anne turned to see from whence it came. In a boat to the left and behind her, stood John Neuman. It was his searchlight.

Now all the cruiser's light were gleaming. The big motor was pulsing, and then, searchlight ahead, it shot out into the river, leaving churning waters behind.

The mass of boats disintegrated, disappearing into the darkness, until only two remained. One nosed steadily towards them.

John Neuman's voice came cautiously from this, as it moved abreast. "Get Nikki out of this," he ordered Orvi, "beach her if you have to, then put back to the wharf without her."

And then his boat was gone. They headed into the night, and Anne, shocked and horrified, sat face in her hands. Uncle Lee shot. Was he dead? Poor Uncle Lee. What was he doing down here? Had he decided Hannula was telling the truth, and come down to see for himself?

The "Nikki" circled the lights of Astoria and Union Town. "Too rough to beach her," Orvi said, "let's put her off at Hunters' Wharf."

After what seemed hours to Anne they put into a deserted wharf south of Union Town. Anne made her unsteady way down the narrow wet plank to the mainland, and the boat moved away to return to its home berth.

Uncle Lee shot. The swish of her wet shoes made a chant of it. Uncle Lee shot. She should be with him, not out here, sneaking home like a criminal. Why had John insisted upon this? Protecting her, she knew, trying to hide her identity, to protect it, now that revealing it could not check the violence he feared.

Overhead the reflection of lights on the clouds grew lurid as she approached town. She found the end of the dirt road leading to her front door, and followed it wearily until she reached the shingle cottage. She opened the door. Liisa was gone. Exhausted she sank into a chair before the dying fire.

Uncle Lee. Luke had loved him so, this younger brother who could do no wrong. Good natured Uncle Lee, his only crime was belief in everyone.

Wearily she went to her room, then stopped. Footsteps were coming, running.

"Nikki, Nikki!" It was Miina. "Nikki," she burst into the room, "the police have arrested George and Orvi for shooting Lee Farnsworth."

"That isnt' true!" Anne stared at the girl.

"It is true, they're taken them to jail."

"I didnt' mean that part, I mean they didn't shoot him, they couldn't have. Orvi was tending the engine and George was in the pilot house."

"But Nikki," cried Miina, "they found the gun in their boat."

Anne stared at Miina in horror. That boat, bumping theirs, that thud.

It took Anne a full moment to digest what Miina had told her. There was only one thing to do. She pulled her wet beret back over her curls as she recognize it.

She would go to the police, reveal her identity, and assure the authorities that the boys had nothing to do with the shooting; that they were present only because it was believed she might do something to check the violence of the men.

"Where are you going?" Miina asked in alarm as Anne started pulling the slicker Orvi had given her back over her shoulders.

"To the police to tell them the truth."

"No," Miina objected, "Ma says you're to stay here and not let anyone know you're here."

"I couldn't do that," Anne answered, turning off the lights. "I must go down there and clear George and Orvi at once. Maybe, Miina, you'd better stay here in case anyone wants me. Where is Liisa?"

"She and mother went down to the Neumans. John is getting an attorney for the boys and seeing about bail, if they're allowed bail."

"Then you'd better stay with the children." Anne preceded Miina out of the door. "If Tecla comes in before I return, tell her not to worry." She hurried down the steps to the lower street, down the street to the highway, where she caught a bus for Astoria.

As the lumbering vehicle made its way over the hill, she remembered that this was the first time she had crossed that barrier since she came to Union Town.

She left the bus and went directly to the jail.

Anne faces a torturesome inquisition, tomorrow.

OLDFIELD INJURED

MORE ABOUT XMAS SPIRIT

just bought his big brother an ash tray for 10 cents, his mother some safety pins for a nickel, his sister a package of "bobby" pins, his dad a package of razor blades, and has a nickel left. So he stops at the candy counter near the door, buys a nickel's worth of candy, puts a piece in his mouth, and leaves, with his Christmas shopping done.

The two sisters next to him have 50 cents a piece. "You give her the 50 cents," the taller one is saying, "and we'll use my 50 cents for the other present."

37 Women; No Men

Not so with the short sister. "How do we know his present will cost as much as her present?"

"Well," is the answer, "I guess we can buy something that costs whatever we want to pay, can't we?" They still are arguing, but there really is a commotion over by the greeting card counter. Thirty-seven women, and not a man in sight!

Same at the decorations counter; but at the perfume counter in the midst of women flanked three deep is a boy from the high school, just smelling. For his mother, or his girl. He looks harassed, balancing a tiny vial at a large price in one hand, and a larger bottle at a smaller price in the other.

Still Hangs It Up

"Yes, he's 14 years old," the fat man is explaining to the girl behind the notions counter, "but he still hangs up his stocking. I'm looking for some tricks." He is a pleasant man, and offers me a peanut when he sees I am watching him. "Kids like stockings," he says. "So do I."

In the toy section is an alligator, fearsome creation of tin and green paint, that snaps his jaws as he stalks the counter. The middle-aged woman in the expensive coat enjoys him as much as the three urchins that are watching.

She'll Want Stockings

Farther down, a modern 12-year-old is explaining. "Aw, dad," she says, "diaries are all right. Sure, they're all right, but shucks, nobody keeps a diary any more. I don't think she'd like a diary. I bet she'd like a pair of stockings better than she'd like a diary."

Toys, and clothes, and nice things for the house, and candy and cakes and books and Salvation Army lassies ringing at their Christmas kettles. Santa Claus, and business booming, and crowds thronging the sidewalks. Yuletime again.

Out of all this Christmas shopping one thing more sought for and found less than any other in Santa Ana—a parking place.

SHIRLEY STARS IN 'REBEL'

When a little girl and her happiness are involved, the Blue and Gray are all friends and no foes, as Shirley Temple's new picture, "The Littlest Rebel," which opens at the Broadway theater Christmas day (Wednesday) proves.

The picture is adapted from the immortal play of the Civil war. As the tiniest confederate in Virginia, the dimpled darling of the screen plays her first big dramatic role in "The Littlest Rebel." John Boles and Karen Morley are her parents. Separated by the war, they are rejoined just before Miss Morley succumbs.

Shirley sings two songs in the film. Bill Robinson, colored genius of tap dancing, is again Shirley's inseparable companion. Between them they manage some deft and charming exhibitions of footwork.

A special selection of short subjects will be on the program, including a Silly Symphony cartoon, "Broken Toys;" a comedy, "Our Gang Follies of 1936"; "Screen Snapshots," and World News events.

ETHIOPIAN BARLEY GROWN IN ARCTIC

Experiments with samples brought from Africa by a scientific expedition led to wide scale sowing on the Kola peninsula, well inside the Arctic circle.

The Ethiopian variety competes with the best local barleys, government experts reported.

CHINA PLANE TO HOP OFF SUNDAY

Second Clipper Flight Taking Christmas Mail to Islands

ALAMEDA, Dec. 21. (AP)—The China Clipper's second transpacific flight, twice postponed, is scheduled for 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Held over yesterday for additional mail and express from the East, the 25-ton Pan-American Airways seaplane will bear a heavy and varied Christmas cargo on her westward hop. Her load includes a Santa Claus suit, which Capt. Edwin C. Musick will wear at Midway and Wake islands, a flower lei for Mayor Wright of Honolulu, Christmas trees and numerous airmail letters and packages.

The Philippine Clipper, poised at Manila for the eastward journey, was also twice delayed due to weather. She will take off at 10 p. m. today (2 a. m., Sunday, Manila Time).

SIX PROJECTS COMPLETED

Six Orange county projects, completed at a total cost of $8379.80, and giving employment to 193 men, were closed today, Works Progress administration officials announced.

Work on the projects had been under way for periods ranging from three weeks to two months.

The list of completed jobs includes:

Yorba Linda grammar school ground improvements, employed 65 men for two months, total cost $1120.90; Coast boulevard drainage ditch, near Newport Beach, employed 35 men for six weeks, total cost $2009.10; La Habra storm drain, employed 45 men for six weeks, total cost $2473.15.

Building levee and flood protection at Delhi, employed 12 men for six weeks, total cost $740.30; Improving grounds at Manual Arts building, Santa Ana, employed 17 men for four weeks, total cost $745.15; Basque avenue bridge construction, Fullerton, employed 19 men for six weeks, total cost $1290.20.

BRUNO'S APPEAL DUE MONDAY

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 21. (AP)—C. Lloyd Fisher, one of Bruno Richard Hauptman's attorneys, said today he would probably file on Monday Hauptmann's petition to the court of pardons for clemency.

The draft of the petition has not been completed, Fisher said, and still needs Hauptmann's signature.

Governor Hoffman is expected to summon the court between Christmas and New Year's to consider the plea for mercy.

SANTA ANA STAR TO CELEBRATE MONDAY

A Christmas party with a gift exchange is set for Monday night at 8 o'clock at the Santa Ana chapter, O. E. S., meeting in the Masonic temple.

The Peter Pan Players are to present a program, and refreshments will be served.

Warfare Looming in County Over Rising Tide of Canned Orange Juice in Citrus Belt

Along a battle front extending through all the rich Orange county citrus belt, warfare of great importance to every citrus grower in the county will be launched soon.

Rumblings of the conflict have been heard for several years, today they are louder than ever before.

The question, briefly, is this: What is to be done about the rising tide of citrus juice canning companies that are constantly increasing in the county, proving a serious threat to the industry?

Opposition to the growing interest of juice companies in the Orange county field is almost united among growers and marketing organizations. The problem is more serious today, it is believed, than ever before.

Word comes that experiments of the California Packing Company in developing a new method of preparing the juice for canning have proved successful; that the taste of the canned product is much more nearly comparable to the fresh fruit.

Coincident with this announcement comes news that Libby, McNeil and Libby, the Calpack Company, the Sun-Dine Company and others plan expansion of their activities in Orange county.

It is easy to see why. The valencia orange contains almost twice as much juice as the navel. Orange county is the center of the valencia orange belt. If taste objections to canned juice have been removed, growers say, a great expansion of the business can be expected as a matter of course.

The orange juice canning business, Harry May of Fullerton said today, has increased as much as 100 per cent in 1935. Libby, McNeil and Libby's new canned juice is on the market. Calpack's new juice is still in the experimental stage, and will not be released for another six months. The question foremost in growers' minds is what will happen to the fresh fruit industry after the canned product has taken hold—after expansion has started in earnest.

Today the Orange county agricultural commissioner, D. W. Tubbs, has a file in his office listing the important citrus processing plants in the county numbering 17.

Other observers, many of them prominent in the citrus industry, say that there are as many as 60 processing plants in the citrus belt, perhaps 20 in Orange county. Edward Hall, Santa Ana grower, says 60; R. D. Flaherty, executive secretary of the farm bureau, says 30. Mr. May didn't even attempt to number the plants, saying they are apt to spring up anywhere.

Tubbs Lists Them

Mr. Tubbs lists them: Orange County Canners, Fullerton; Mutual Citrus Products, Anaheim; E. A. Silzle Company, Anaheim; Reed-Otis Company, Olive; V. R. Smith Packing Company, Anaheim; Lash, Inc., Orange; Natural Food Products, Orange; Santa Barbara Citrus Juice Company, Orange; Citrus Juice and Flavor Company, Orange; Pacific Citrus Products, Santa Ana; Taylor's Cannery, Santa Ana; Treesweet Products, Santa Ana; Sun-Dine Company, Santa Ana.

The Absopure By-Products Company, Libby, McNeil and Libby, and the California Packing Company buy the bulk of their oranges in Orange county. Some they process here, the others are sent to Los Angeles and San Francisco for preparation.

The reason this growth is serious, growers say, is:

Here's the Reason

That the canned juice, which can be kept for long periods of time without spoiling, is in direct competition with perishable fruits on the market. By virtue of its condensation it can be shipped more cheaply; it utilizes culls, cast-offs and blemished fruits, giving it a very low initial cost; it can be held over from year to year, impairing retail markets for fresh fruit, which comes on the market annually regardless of last year's sales records.

Growers and marketing organizations in general throughout the county have adopted a definite thumbs down attitude toward the fruit juice companies. They will make it difficult for the canning concerns to secure enough fruit for their seasonal purposes, until it can be demonstrated that the industry is beneficial to the growers.

Processing officials, on the other hand, say that the canning of juice does away with unmarketable culls, relieves pressure in the fresh fruit market, and provides an immediate market for surplusage.

Asks Study of Problem

Farm Advisor Harold Wahlberg, realizing the magnitude of the problem, has asked the Giannini Foundation at the University of California to make a study of it, with a view toward presenting a solution.

Many are presented. Clare Johnson, Santa Ana grower, urges that the California Fruit Growers Exchange associations install their own plants, thus controlling the market on fruit juices and returning to the growers whatever revenue there is in th business, or raise the price juice manufacturers pay growers to the point where some adequate return on their fruit is made them.

Henry J. Hinrichs, Orange rancher, on the other hand, says: "I see no object in the associations investing in expensive equipment for juice canning until many of the improvements which are bound to come have been perfected."

Urges Higher Price

Discussing the present marketing of cull oranges to independent canneries, Mr. Hinrichs said: "The growers will have to band together and set a price on that portion of their fruit which is suitable for juice production. In that way a fair price will be obtained from the various canning factories and the culls will bring in an income to the grower.

"If the canneries assert they cannot pay a higher price for culls than they have been doing in the past, then I would suggest that they shove the price of their product up at least 2 cents a can. That additional 2 cents would mean a good deal to the grower."

Other citrus growers throughout the county expressed similar opinions. Alex Brownridge, Santa Ana; Fred Silver, Tustin, and Edward Hall, Santa Ana, were unanimous in the opinion that the juice question must be solved.

Their Suggestions

Suggestions by these three include manufacture by the marketing organizations themselves, placing culls in a prorate of their own, dumping them, or extracting at least one dollar a box for fruit sold to juice plants.

Unanimous opinion is that the juice indsutry, leaping and bounding ahead,, will in time cause serious damage to fresh fruit markets throughout the nation. Opinion on what to do about it is not so unanimous, although most afree that something should be done.

In the meantime most of the growers will wait and see. Not so the processors. They are looking to the future, and juice to the world from orange county oranges.

Consumption of confectionery and chocolate products in the United States is running about 10 per cent ahead of last year's consumption.

ARTISTS TAKE TO AIR FOR CHRISTMAS

Music And Plays Being Broadcast From Top Of Bank Building

A veritable galaxy of Santa Ana artists will be presented in the final Christmas music radio broadcast series being sent out over the air from the top of the First National bank building each noon and evening until Christmas.

Carl Stein, chairman of the music committee, announced that the Episcopal Church of the Messiah quartet, under the direction of Halstead McCormac, will be heard tonight at 6 o'clock. The program will include many of the better known Christmas numbers. The personnel includes Lorene Graves, Laura Joiner, Gus Korhler and Wallace LeGras.

String Trio at 7:15

The Carillon string trio will be presented at 7:15 p. m., under the direction of Rose Marie Flint, in a program of characteristic holiday music.

Tomorrow night at 8:45 o'clock a 45-minute program will be presented by a mixed quartet under the direction of Dan Stover, and by the Elwood Bear Lyric string trio.

Monday's Program

Monday programs will inlcude Cecile Willetts, vocalist, and Ruth Armstrong, pianist, at noon; Vladimir Lenski, Charlotte Stafford and John Stout, violin solo, at 6 p. m.; Elwood Bear string ensemble, at 7:15 p. m.

On Tuesday a playlet, "The Fourth Wise Man," will be presented at noon by the Casey Dramatic company; the Elks double quartet will sing at 6:15 p. m, and the final program, from 7 to 8 p. m., will present a group of Santa Ana Junior college musicians, under the direction of Leland Auer.

LIFE IN 1935

4. Political Riddle Waits Solution In '36

Fourth in a series of 12 daily articles.

By HERBERT YAHRAES

Oratorial winds swept the country this year, filled the air with politics, left John Smith dazed.

All he could be certain of—and here a bullet, not a speech, did the trick—was that Huey P. Long was out of the picture.

Since 1935 marked the third year, the definitely post-honeymoon period, of an administration whose recovery and reform measures did not suit everybody, and since it was the springboard for a presidential campaign, John Smith was not surprised to find undisguised politics written large on the American scene.

For a time he found himself amid the blood and thunder of old-fashioned politics. General Hugh Johnson, former NRA administrator, Senator Long and Father Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, engaging in a politico-economic debate, slammed out sizzling phrases reminiscent of the days when politicians orated in the glow of red fire torches.

Name-Calling

"Mad pied pipers," Johnson termed Long and Coughlin, "public enemies Number one and two," "economic shysters," political termites."

Father Coughlin retorted that Johnson was a "distorter of history, perverter of logic," used "the logic of a braggart," and that the "money changers . . . have marshaled their forces behind the leadership of the chocolate soldier."

"Pampered ex-crown prince," said Long of Johnson, "and 'scrapegoat' of the NRA."

Later, Johnson discussed the "lousy aspects of this administration," continued to call for Roosevelt's reelection; the priest broke with the administration; Long fell before an assassin's gun at Baton Rouge.

Townsend's Power

John Smith tried to gauge the position of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, advocate of $200 a month for the aged, as a possible inheritor of some of Long's power. The doctor's plan failed to get anywhere with congress this year, but his campaign continued, with indications the issue would flavor many a congressional race. The Townsend party plans include a presidentail candidate for 1936.

Anti-administration Governor Eugene Talmadge attracted attention, had some of Long's appeal, but his power outside of Georgia was questionable.

The 1936 fight seemed likely to be a two-sided affair, yet hardly a straight out-and-out battle between Democrats and Republicans. Some Democrats deplored, some Republicans admired, administration policies.

It seemed to John Smith that the midwest would be a major '36 battleground. Development of the administration's farm program, the booming of midwesterners as possible Republican candidates, the "grass roots" conference at Springfield, Ill., last summer, seemed to point that way.

Attitude of Business

Nevertheless, there were indicatonis late in the year that instead of waging merely a perfunctory campaign in the east, where business seemed largely anit-administration, the Democrats might make that section a major battleground.

Business in general seemed somewhat more favorable to the administration after the President announced a "breathing spell," but there was much proof, including a multitude of suits against "New Deal" measures, that strong business groups were not satisfied.

For John Smith, even more clouded than the issues was the question of who would be the Republican presidential nominee. He heard a host of possible candidates mentioned, outstanding among them Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher. He watched former President Herbert Hoover return to the arena, with speeches written in a more picturesque idiom. But Hoover's position still was not clear.

Every One Pleased

Nor did 1935 offer any considerable material on which to hazard a guess as to next year's outcome. The off-year elections were of no great help, since leaders in each party claimed to be satisfied with the results.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, Democratic impresario, issued optimistic statements through the year. Both he and the President seemed impressed by the reception accorded the latter's tour through the west, where he talked AAA power poilcies, public works, neutrality.

Republican Chairman Henry P. Fletcher and associates professed to see the rising of a strong anti-administration tide.

For political light, John Smith had to look ahead.

Tomorrow—Foreign Affaris

The kapok tree is cultivated for its fiber chiefly in Java and less extensively in the Philippines, Federated Malay States and Ceylon.

The "average citizen" was caught in a maze of political oratory in 1935, but despite the strong bids of several new schools of political thought, it appeared certain the 1936 Presidential race would go to one of the two major parties.

Cato Regrets Ghastly Record; Thinks 1935 Total To Be 2800

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 21. (AP)—Destruction of human life on California highways mounted in November to the highest monthly toll in the history of the state.

Fearing a final check may show 300 fatalities, Chief E. Raymond Cato of California's highway patrol announced 295 traffic deaths are now reported for last month.

Estimating 2800 lives will be claimed this year, approximating 1934's total, Cato said, "November's ghastly record is greatly regretted at a time when California was on the road to setting an example in decreasing fatal accidents on its highways for 1935."

October had been marked by a noticeable decline in the monthly toll. Careless driving under wet weather conditions was blamed by Cato for the staggering increase last month and for the previous record of 184 fatalities in December, 1934.

PAY PLACE SET FOR WPA MEN

Christmas checks for Works Progress Administration workers will be distributed Tuesday afternoon through specially set up headquarters in the National Guard Armory, 415½ West Fourth street, Paymaster Russell F. Palmgren announced today.

A call is being issued to all project workers who do not receive their checks in the field to report at the armory after 1 p. m. Dec. 24 to receive payment.

The move is being taken in order to insure receipt of checks by every worker in the county, Mr. Palmgren said. Officials stated it would be virtually impossible to distribute the checks in the field in one day.

All payroll checks up to and including Dec. 20 will be distributed in the special Christmas payoff, as an official Christmas gesture to the workers.

Caroline Ferrey Wed to Herald Williams at Rites in Tustin Church

Tailored Modes Chosen by Party

150 Guests At Reception In Bride's Home; Extend Congratulations

Before a candle-lighted altar, Miss Caroline Ferrey and Herald Williams exchanged marriage vows last night at 8:30 o'clock services in the First Presbyterian church of Tustin. The Rev. Perry F. Schrock officiated.

Yellow chrysanthemums had been used to bank the altar of the church, with palms and candles at either side. Small bouquets of white chrysanthemums were at each pew.

The bride was a lovely picture in her smart tailored white satin dress with a stitched collar and veil. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias. Her father, W. I. Ferrey, presented her for marriage.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Jean Ferrey, carrying talisman roses, Mrs. Q. L. Hardy, matron of honor, Miss Madelaine Cravath, Bakersfield, and Mrs. Charles C. Allen, Los Angeles, other attendants all carrying bouquets of yellow roses. They were in long turquoise blue tailored satin.

Fraternity Brothers Attend

Best man to the bridegroom was Ralph O. Wilcox, Los Angeles. Ushers were Allen McKenney and Herbert Perry, Los Angeles, and Herbert Balleu, Lindsey, all Kappa Sigma fraternity brothers.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Ferrey, 320 Main street, Tustin. Mr. Williams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Williams, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ferrey had chosen a black velvet dress and wore a corsage of pink roses, while Mrs. Williams was in midnight blue velvet with a corsage of gardenias.

Following the wedding, 150 guests were bidden to the home of the bride for a reception. A four-tier wedding cake centered the refreshment table.

Go To Palm Springs

A week at Palm Springs was planned by the newlyweds before they will be at home at 4195 Sixth avenue, Los Angeles.

Mr. Williams is assiciated with Hamlin W. Nerney Ford company, Los Angeles. Both were graduated from the University of Southern California in 1934. Mr. Williams took his degree in management from the College of Commerce. He was also prominent in campus athletics. The bride was a Kappa Alpha Theta and was graduated in journalism, with a record of activity in campus publications.

Thursday night, following rehearsal for the wedding, the bridal party adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Q. L. Hardy, 1228 North Broadway for a buffet supper.

Dainty compacts were presented her attendants by Mrs. Williams and the bridegroom gave his party cigarette lighters.

Honored at Luncheon

Tuesday, Mrs. Williams was guest of honor at a luncheon, given at the Town House in Los Angeles by Mrs. Ray Sparling for a group of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority sisters. Others present were Mrs. G. R. McHaffie, Mrs. Hilton McCabe, Mrs, C. C. Allen and Miss Jean Ferrey.

A stag dinner was given recently for Mr. Williams by Mr. Wilcox at the home of Ernie Anschut, South Brighton, Los Angeles, with Kappa Sigma fraternity brothers as guests.

TEAPOT TATTLE

By ELLEN SNEBLEY

We hope you don't feel as we do!

Weeks and weeks ago, your Tattler decided to be foreminded and do her Christmas marketing early. The resolve was carried out, with regard to gifts.

But Christmas cards! Silently they rebuke her as she uncloses one eye early in the morning. Again, when the 8 o'clock mail brings in a drizzle of messages from here and there, each one is a delicate reminder that there are still neat piles of cards to be addressed and stamped, and before this can be done, a list must be prepared.

And those two last gifts, the ones we put off getting—they weigh heavily, ponderously on our conscience.

Which reminds us of a friend whose shopping budget has been reduced to $2.50 for a favorite aunt, who likes very practical things, and the same amount for my friend's husband.

It seems Auntie doesn't care for goldfish or birds, which I hopefully suggested, and the present of a doghouse for the lord and master fell as flat as anything could.

Bert Stephenson is expected daily from Descanso to bring Christmas cheer to several Santa Anans.

No, that doesn't mean what you thought. He brings woodsy-smelling fir trees from his ranger haunts, and gives 'em to the T. E. Stephensons, and the Edmund C. Wests and to Boyd Joplin . . . and has done so for years and years.

Had a very sentimental moment in a local cafe seeing the long rope of candy canes above the candy counter, remembering how we viewed that same rope with intense longing some years ago and under the spell of the memory, purchased a goodsized red'n white striped cane to take home to ye little fir tree.

Among other Christmas plans, we hope and trust that the A. J. Cruickshank home will have another beautifully decorated tree this season in front of the immense mirror at one end of the living room . . . and Velma'n Bruce Monro have a gay little jinglebell device on their doorbell that's fun to ring . . . the Charles Carothers home will see a family reunion Christmas day, and an old-fashioned tree.

Jack McCarty arrived last evening from Oregon State college to be at home with his parents for the holidays, and who's more excited about it—Marge Sawyer, or his mother?

We think that Jessie McClain, wtih her new hairdress, a smooth coronet braid, would make a very attractive addition to almost any young eligible's Christmas tree.

"My first wife's mother-in-law is here spending the holidays with me." You'd be surprised how many of Glenn Thorne's friends have "bitten" on that remark, which really only means that his mother, Mrs. Daniel W. Thorne of Grand Rapids, Mich., is here visiting him and his one-and-only wife, Alice Thorne.

Thelma'n Alvin Stauffer are another family whose idea of a happy Christmas is a truly old-fashioned tree . . . and theirs is very prettily decorated.

Things worth seeing: The stream of individuals carrying packages to the P. O. to wait in line for stamping and mailing . . . and the forgetful husband who slinks up to a parcel box a day or so before Christmas to mail that big box bound back east, "home." Also bashful lads purchasing perfume'n baubles, and girls fingering ties doubtfully.

Speaking of weddings, we think Caroline Ferrey was one of the loveliest brides we've seen this year, and we're sure Helen Switzler will be another.

Sorry little ladies we have seen: Roselind Schilling, who plans only to be married once, and who had wanted to tell the news of her engagement with the traditional sorority candybox, but who read about it in the paper before she had a chance.

* * *

We would go on, but having more or less squashed one Tattling finger since the previous paragraph was written, our "t's" are hard to write, so we'll say "cheerio" for today, and a right Merry Christmas to you all.

Y. L. I. CELEBRATES 13TH BIRTHDAY AT DINNER FETE

Founded 13 years ago in Santa Ana, Capistrano Young Ladies Institute celebrated its anniversary at a dinner party with the Knights of Columbus Thursday night in the K. of C. hall.

Clyde Ashen as toastmaster introduced Mrs. William Maag, president of Y. L. I., who traced the history of the organization and welcomed the guests.

A decorated birthday cake had been presented the organization by the Knights of Columbus. Father Thomas Butler, chaplain of the K. of C., and Tom Gisler, grand knight of the K. of C., were introduced to the assemblage.

A Spanish dance was given and a string trio played a group of numbers.

Experiences at the Dixie disaster in Florida were reviewed by Father F. A. Wekenman, now of San Diego, and formerly rector at St. Joseph's Catholic church.

The room had been decorated in cantoneaster berries and Christmas lights and red candles. In charge of the dinner were Mrs. E. J. Vosskuhler, chairman, and Mesdames Philip Telef, Clyde Taylor, Clyde Ashen, Ruth Luhman, William H. Maag, Tom Gisler, and Charles Borchard.

SHE'S NEW BRIDE

Mrs. Herald Williams, shown above, was Miss Caroline Ferrey until last night when she was married at services in the Tustin Presbyterian church. She's off to Palm Springs for a week now before they will be at home in Los Angeles.

GALA NOEL SCENE MARKS PARTY OF SIGMA TAU PSI

Twin silver Christmas trees, a nativity scene in miniature and stars on a wide window in the living room of the Elliott H. Rowland home on Fairmont street made a lovely setting for the Christmas dinner party of Sigma Tap Psi sorority Thursday evening.

Misses Betty and Jean Rowland hostessed.

Miss Roselind Schilling, whose betrothal to Lee Hasenjaeger was just announced, was congratulated. Mrs. Edward Sugden, chapter president, announced Paul Johnson won the sorority's Christmas turkey.

The pledges, Mrs. Ralph Jenkins, Mrs. Fayette Birtchard and Misses Fern Berkner, Dolly Cox, Virginia Graves and Roselind Schilling, gave a clever fashion show of the late 19th century and of today.

MUSICAL ARTS CLUB GOES CHRISTMAS

Musical Arts club members lent their talents to Christmas yesterday noon at their meeting in James cafe.

Carols were led by Cecile Fross Willits, accompanied by Ruth Armstrong. Lois Rees Auer read O. Henry's Christmas short story, "The Gift of the Magi."

A gift exchange was held among the members at the beginning of the program.

Auxiliary Has Christmas Party

Legion auxiliary members joined with Santa Ana post No. 131 Thursday night for a gift exchange and party at Veterans' hall.

Whitford Hall led the group in Christmas carols, accompanied by John Henderson at the piano.

A report was given by Mrs. Arthur Eklund on a Christmas party held recently at 29 Palms by the district legion auxiliary. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Leland Ewbank and her committee.

The next county council meeting will be held in Huntington Beach Jan. 14.

CHRISTMAS IN FOREIGN LANDS SHOWN AT HOOVER

How Christmas is observed in other lands was demonstrated by students at Hoover school Thursday night in a program given under auspices of the P.-T. A.

Each class had a part in the international Christmas program.

More than 100 peace cards were signed by the members to be sent to President Roosevelt indorsing his stand on neutrality. Mrs. A. C. Honer presided in the absence of the president.

Wassail and cookies was served with candy canes for the children by a refreshment committee, under Mrs. John J. Vernon.

January 9 will be he date of the next meeting.

MRS. CHARLES COOK FETES OFFICERS AT LUNCHEON

Christmas compliments were extended to her officers by Mrs. Charles Cook, retiring president of Calumpit auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans, Thursday at a 1 o'clock luncheon at her home, 207 West Tenth street.

Yuletide colors decked the small tables at which the guests sat. Mrs. U. S. Glaze, department president, and Mrs. Jack Shaw, junior past president, were honored guests.

A white beaded evening bag was given the retiring head from her guests. In turn, she presented each of the officers a decorative traveling utility set.

Prizes in the afternoon games went to Mrs. Effie Hawley, Mrs. Al Hall and Mrs. J. A. Randel.

HANDEL'S 'MESSIAH' TO BE PRESENTED AS YULE MUSIC

George Frederick Handel's famous pageant, "The Messiah," will be given by the choir and visiting soloists at the Community Presbyterian Church Sunday evening, Dec. 22 as a special Christmas service.

Archie Moore, baritone soloist of the Congregational Church in Pomona, will sing as guest soloist and other soloists include Cleo Allen Hibbs and Webster William Brahams, tenors; Mrs. Curtis Williams and Marie Thurston, sopranos and Mrs. Lauretta Chilton, contralto.

The vesper service will open with a candlelight processional, the melody and words of which come from a 13th century song.

If one tumbler has become stuck in another in piling them by the kitchen sink, pour cold water in the upper glass which will contact it. Then let the lower glass soak in warm water and the glasses will become disengaged.

"Off to Niagara" Is Byword of Honeymooners Again, Pointing to Economic Upturn

By MARY STODDARD

Honeymooners—in the days gone by the whole world loved them and the whole world has missed them during these past few years of depression.

But here's glad tidings to the waiting world—they're returning. That old-fashioned institution of glamor and romance, known as Honeymoon Trail is reconstructed.

Brides and bridegrooms, if you please, are traveling to Niagara Falls! They are standing in the moonlight, at the water. They are buying picture postcards to send back home. They are off on a holiday, getting acquainted.

The United Press, believing that honeymoons are a barometer of prosperity, made a survey in the city by the waterfall—a survey which revealed that there has been an increase of about 30 per cent in the number of registrations of newlyweds this year as compared to the corresponding period of 1934.

A honeymoon is a luxury.

During the last few years honeymoons have been on the wane. The money was needed for chairs on which to sit and dishes on which to eat. Therefore, the boys and girls and men and women who have been tuning their hearts to the same tempo have deferred their honeymoons until some future time. Next year, in five years, sometime, we'll go to Vienna or Los Angeles or Niagara, they told each other; and sometimes they believed it.

The time for a honeymoon is immediately after the wedding ceremony. Traveling somewhere with the one you love best is twice as much fun before you know that he is going to send back his eggs if they are boiled three minutes instead of two, and that he always whistles the same melody when he shaves.

Marriages without a doubt should get off to a better start now that a bride doesn't have to hurry home from the office on her wedding day, to get dinner, or, at the best, merely gets a week-end holiday at the beginning of her marital adventure.

CHILDREN TO BE FETED BY LIONS AT YULE AFFAIR

Laguna children between the ages of two and 15 years will be given a real treat Christmas eve when the Lions' Club entertains with a party in the Legion hall.

The affair will begin at 7:30 o'clock with a movie and refreshments of sandwiches and hot chocolate. Santa Claus will be present to present each child with a gift from the huge Christmas tree.

Frank Kibbey, chairman of the party committee, Harry Bowles, and Chester Maag who are in charge of the evening's entertainment, promise a thrilling evening for all tots present. Parents, wives of members and their friends have been cordially invited to attend and watch the celebration.

LATHROP LIBRARY FESTIVE SETTING

Always a delightful place, the Lathrop library, branch of the Santa Ana city library, is especially festive at this season.

Mrs. Juanita Wallace Lake and her assistant, Miss Eleanor Metzgar, have arranged a gay display of Christmas books and prepared lists of Christmas stories for grownups and children.

Mrs. Lake will conduct a Christmas story hour for children Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Practical Marian Martin Aprons That Serve a Purpose

PATTERN 9671

Do you envy the friends who seem always to have an unlimited supply of aprons on hand? Ten to one, they make their own—a trick that's yours to copy, and very easily, too. Search your scrap bag for idle remnants of gingham, percale or swiss, invest in a few bright buttons, and you're ready to begin. Give a cheer for shoulder straps that are fashioned in one piece with the back—for they can't slip! Apron "A" can cook up the loveliest surprises—given the freedom of the kitchen, and works best in sturdy pre-shrunk cotton. Self-ruffling trims Apron "B"—so crisp and feminine in swiss or dimity. You'll make the prettiest hostess imaginable if you don it at tea time or for serving dinner. Complete, Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9671 may be ordered only in sizes small, medium, large and extra large. Small size requires 2½ yards 36 inch fabric for each apron.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

The new Marian Martin pattern book will be ready for mailing Dec. 18. Place your order now, and be among the first to receive a copy. It's a practical pattern book that interprets spring's newest fashions in thrifty, easy-to-make clothes for the whole family! Price of book 15 cents. Book and pattern together, 25 cents.

Send your order to The Santa Ana Journal, Pattern Department, 117 East Fifth street.

Romance Adds Zest to Yule Affair

News of the engagement of Miss Caroline M. Smith to Sam W. Cash lent added zest to the annual Christmas party of Beta Sigma Phi last evening in the home of the chapter's honorary member, Mrs. John Tessman, 307 East Seventeenth street.

Tall red candles in shining brass candelabra, the crackling of logs in the fireplace and heaps of gifts under a gay Christmas tree added to the effectiveness of the scene.

As a surprise, Mrs. Tessmann, who is the group's Christmas hostess each year, presented a guest, Mrs. Maurice Enderle, who read three holiday legends, each cleverly interpreted.

A ring at the doorbell resulted in the receipt by Miss Lucie McDermott, president, of a large silver and white box decked with silver ribbons and bells. It proved to be a five-pound box of chocolates with the message that Miss Smith and Mr. Cash will be married next Easter season.

The portieres were drawn back to reveal the tree, and Mr. Tessman played Christmas carols on the zither. He acted as Santa Claus. A small box of Italian candy for everyone was the gift of Miss Isabelle Siracusa.

Mrs. Tessman served refreshments, including wassail.

DOROTHY CRANE IS WEDDED IN GLENDALE

Miss Dorothy Crane, member of the Newport Beach Elementary school faculty was married to Roy J. McGrew at an 8 o'clock wedding ceremony today in the Wee Kirk o' the Heather, Glendale.

The bride wore a black velour ensemble trimmed in black fur and wore a corsage of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Miss Carolyn Crane, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Earl McGrew, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. McGrew will continue with her school work after a week's vacation spent in Ontario, where she will make her home after school is out in June. She is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and of the San Diego State college. Her mother is Mrs. Hope McGrew of San Diego.

Mr. McGrew, son of Roy J. McGrew of Huntington Park, has been assistant manager of the Bank of America at Balboa for one and one-half years and was transferred recently to the Bank of America at Ontario.

The Thinkers

Wherein women of the community express their views on topics of particular interest to women.

Do you think lotteries should be legalized so that the government could regulate them and Uncle Sam collect revenue from such games of chance?

Mrs. F. P. Jayne: I think it's a terrible thing even to think of. It seems so absurd, and think of the influence on oncoming generations to have gambling sponsored by our government. I don't like the idea. People shouldn't be encouraged to strive for what they have not legitimately earned.

Mrs. L. N. Sherrard: I'm opposed to gambling large sums of money. Gambling should be discouraged, rather than encouraged. If lotteries are legalized, they should be taxed at a rate calculated to discourage them.

SHEET REPAIRS

When your sheets begin to wear, rip off the torn part and re-hem the remainder. These smaller sheets may be used for cots for the children, and are also invaluable as draw sheets in case of illness.

An eggplant, large orange, apple or grapefruit can be used for holding the appetizer sticks which are so popular now.

MISS RUTH READ MARRIED IN HOME OF HER PARENTS

Miss Ruth Read was married to Walter Ott Thursday evening in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Read, West Santa Clara avenue.

The Rev. Ola F. Edgar, Lutheran pastor from Los Angeles, officiated at the candlelight rites.

The bride wore white lace and flowers in her hair, and was attended by Mrs. Elrick Anderson of Olive View, in pink. Mr. Anderson was best man.

After a wedding supper, the couple left on a wedding trip, planning to return to Santa Ana and spend Christmas at the Read home before going to Hemet to live.

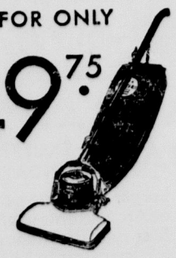

The bride attended Santa Ana Junior college, was graduated from U. S. C. and studied for a year at Cornell. She has been teaching school in Los Angeles. Her romance began while she was staying at her parents' ranch at Hemet.

Mr. Ott, shop instructor in the Hemet High school, attended Santa Barbara State college and took his master's degree work at Oregon State.

SANTA SPIRIT INVADES THE MARKET

Cheerful Stock Buying Evidenced In Brief Session Today

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, Dec. 21. (AP)—The stock market saw signs of Santa Claus today and cheerful, but selective buying prevailed during the brief session.

Aviation issues, particularly, were in demand and several specialities forged ahead. There were many gains of fractions to 3 or more points at the firm close. Tranfers approximated 1,050,000 shares.

Although the confusion surrounding foreign affairs still kept some traders on the sidelines, tension seemed to have lessened. A little more interest in American securities from abroad was noted by commission houses with European connections. Trading gained momentum near the finish.

There was a week-end truce in the silver situation, no price being quoted either in London or New York for the bar metal, and a few mining stocks stiffened. Cotton moved forward moderately.

Grain Market

CHICAGO, Dec. 21. (AP)—All deliveries of wheat developed a firm tone late today, and more than overcome earlier setbacks of prices.

Scantiness of offerings toward the last, especially in December contracts, brought about considerable buying on the part of speculators. Political uncertainty abroad, together with extremely high temperatures in Argentine threatening to increase crop damage there, had a bullish efect.

Wheat closed firm, ⅛-¾ above yesterday's finish. May 99⅝-¾, corn ⅛-⅞ up, May 59⅞-60, oats at ⅛ decline to an equal gain, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

WEEK'S CITRUS REVIEW

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21. (AP)—California oranges and lemons were higher in the eastern and middle western auction centers last week. Holiday demand continued good with prices averaging slightly more than last year.

Navel oranges in the auctions made in average price per box of $3.40, a gain of 24 cents over the average of the preceding week. Shipments increased 66 cars to a total of 443 cars.

Lemons were up 47 cents to an average price in the auctions for the week of $6.70 on increased volume. There were 116 cars of lemons sold in the auctions this week, nine more than a week ago.

Valencias are cleaned up with only a few cars showing at present. Prices on this off-bloom fruit are reasonably good.

Walter L. Bowers, deputy attorney general of California said the state supreme court had announced it would not be able to make a decision on the lemon prorate case for about two months. The opposing side was given permission by the court to file an additional brief and the attorney general's office will be given time in which to file an answer.

W. C. Frackelton, manager of the California-Arizona citrus marketing agreement, announced next week's prorate as follows: Central and northern California 570 packed cars navels; Southern California, 160 packed cars navels and desert valley Arizona, 20 cars packed navels.

The California Fruit Growers exchange, commenting on the market as a whole, says:

"Holiday orange business continued very satisfactory during the past week both in volume and price. Exchange for averages on navel orange sales are better than 50 cents per box ahead of last season to date.

"The grapefruit market is still very low under heavy supplies from all producing areas. During the week ended Dec. 14, Florida shipped 487 cars of grapefruit and Texas 245 cars as compared with the California-Arizona total of 48 cars. The market on lemons continues strong with sales about normal.

"Complete reports show Florida orange shipments of 2346 cars last week which was considerably ahead of estimates. Estimates of Florida shipments next week are 1925 cars of oranges and tangerines and 370 cars of grapefruit."

Orange averages per box for the week, with comparative figures for last week, and for the corresponding weeks of 1934 and 1933 follow:

SANTA LIKES DECORATIONS

Now that Santa Claus arrives in a streamline machine and hops in the front door, he's interested in having the streets ablaze with Christmas color, too. That's why decorated living Christmas trees are being encouraged in Santa Ana this year by the Edison women's commitee.

Any resident in the city who decorates a living tree can enter the contest. Prizes are being awarded in two classifications, over and under ... feet. Table lamps are the first awards and decorative wall fixtures are to go as second prizes. The trophies are on display in the Edison company office now.

Any type of decoration is acceptable, according to Mrs. Anne Glotzbach. Lights in vari-colors, ornaments or a winter scene have been used effectively by other contestants. Originality and beauty are the points of decision.

Miss Irene Drott, telephone 46, will take the entries until 5 p. m., Monday. Judges will make a tour of the streets and judge the winners that evening.

ORANGE LEGION STAGES PARTY

With David Fairbairn, commander of the Orange post of the American Legion, acting as master of ceremonies and at the same time performing the duties of Santa Claus, the Legion and the Legion auxiliary last night held their annual Christmas party in the Legion hall in Orange. Distribution of presents followed a pot-luck dinner to 125 members of the organization and their friends by ladies of the auxiliary.

PAUL COWLES IS CALLED

SAN MATEO, Dec. 21. (AP)—Paul Cowles, retired executive assistant to the general manager of the Associated Press, died at his home shortly before midnight after an illness of several months.

Cowles had a varied career in the "AP" service, his assignments including divisional direction of the service at San Francisco, Chicago and Atlanta. He went to New York as executive assistant to Kent Cooper in 1929, retiring about three years ago.

Coming to the old western Associated Press in the 90's, Cowles succeeded John P. Dunning as superintendent in San Francisco but left that post at the time of the Boxer rebellion to become a "war" correspondent. He came back in San Francisco to "cover" the earthquake and fire of 1906.

For a short time after his retirement he edited the Santa Barbara Morning Press, then moved to San Mateo.

COURT BRIEFS

Marvin Brownmiller yesterday was sentenced to three months in the county jail as a condition of three years' probation on a burglary charge to which he pleaded guilty. Superior Judge James L. Allen conducted the hearing. Brownmiller was accused of entering the bunkhouse of Raitt's dairy on West Seventeenth street last Sept. 8.

James A. Curran pleaded guilty in superior court yesterday to a charge of driving an automobile after his operator's license had been revoked. He will have a probation hearing next Friday. The offense occurred Dec. 13 on the Coast boulevard near the Arches.

Minoru Fujii yesterday was granted three years probation, but also must serve six months in the county jail on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated. He was arrested Dec. 1 on First street near Verano road.

The will of the late Charles Thierfelder, who died at Anaheim Oct. 15, 1934, has been filed for probate in superior court here by Leonard Thierfelder, son, and Esther Martin, daughter, who were named executors. The estate is valued at about $3300. The heirs residing in Orange county are Mrs. Lena Thierfelder, widow; John W. Thierfelder, son, and Leonard Thierfelder, all of Anaheim, and Mary M. Behrens, daughter, of Fullerton. Esther Martin resides at Lennox.

Presiding Judge G. K. Scovel has rendered judgment in favor of Hugo J. Lamb and Earl A. Lamb, executors of the estate of the late Elizabeth Lamb, against Marvin and Iva M. Bickle in a case involving a promissory note. The judgment was for $2900 principal, and $802.98 interest. In another similar case against Mr. Bickle, involving three notes, the court rendered judgment for $1630 principal, and $536.98 interest.

Mary H. Miller yesterday started suit in superior court against Harold H. Barnes, seeking to foreclose a trust deed on Newport Beach property, securing a $1000 promissory note.

Bessie S. McKenzie and John T. McKenzie yesterday started suit in superior court against Gus and Thelma Harri, seeking cancellation of a lease on property between Greenville and Bolsa on grounds that the defendants had not cared for it according to terms of the lease. They also asked $2000 damages.

J. C. Smith and Nettie Smith yesterday started suit in superior court against Samuel Roth and Fannie Roth, asking foreclosure of a mortgage on Santa Ana property, securing a promissory note for $3000. The complaint asked judgement for $3000.

Hattie Dell Blybach yesterday petitioned the superior court for letters of administration in the estate of the late Louis Blybach, who died Dec. 3. The estate is valued at not more than $2500. Heirs listed include the petitioner, widow of the deceased; Dorothy Priscilla Blybach and Mabel V. Kiker, daughter, of Fullerton.

H. J. Miller yesterday sought letters of administration in the estate of the late Mary Miller, who died Nov. 19. The petition filed in superior court said the estate consists of a house and lot at Riverdale. The heirs include Fred Miller, widower, of Los Alamitos; H. J. Miller and Fred Miller jr., sons, of Lynwood, and Tressa Hausladen, daughter, of Seal Beach.

CHURCH TO PUT ON 'DRY' PLAY

H. H. JOHNSON

The drama and trial, "Prisoner at the Bar," which will be presented in the First Methodist Episcopal church tomorrow at 7 p. m. marks an important development in the launching of a new temperance program in California, according to Hayward H. Johnson, dramatic director of the California Anti-Saloon league, in an interview here today.

"Temperance education is the solution of the whole liquor problem," stated Mr. Johnson. Before repeal of prohibition it was said by the wets that the drys had made the mistake of advocating and substituting force for temperance education, sponsors of the play said.

"The temperance education program that preceded adoption of national prohibition was virtually discarded when the law went into effect, a fact that doubtless figured in the bringing about of repeal," he said.

Now those devoted to the temperance cause are returning to the educational program, Mr. Johnson said. The drama comes here tomorrow highly recommended. He quoted Dr. Roy L. Smith, pastor.

The trial is presented by the Anti-Saloon league with the cooperation of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Admission will be free, but a voluntary pledge offering will be taken.

Radio Roundup

TONIGHT'S PROGRAMS

By HOMER CANFIELD

RADIO'S MOST beautiful studio—her own living room at Pickfair—will serve filmdom's gracious First Lady, Mary Pickford, when she returns to the air Feb. 5. The all-important role of writer-producer has been assigned Jerry Cady, Glendale's talented young Irisher. The program undoubtedly will be one of the New Year's outstanding shows.

THE ONLY OTHER talent definitely set as yet is Al Lyons' Cocoanut Grove orchestra. The National Association of Ice Industries will pay the bill. And here's an idea of just what a bill it will be—Miss Pickford's service charge for the contracted twenty-six weekly half-hours will read $104,000. Let's all get in radio!

THE PROGRAM, "Parties at Pickfair," will be variety in type. Plays, adaptations of novels, movie premieres, guest stars and music will all play a hand as if Miss Pickford were staging a party for her own intimate friends with dialers permitted to ... resdrop.

THE PROGRAM'S setting, with its crystals, period furniture, orientals and museum pieces can't help but create an atmosphere for performers that will reflect favorably on the show. According to Cady, the room is ideal for broadcasting. And an adjacent motion picture projection booth will make a handy "mixing" room.

TONIGHT "SHELL Chateau" offers an interesting study in contrasts. Two singers, one just starting the tedious, trying road to success, the other basking majestically in the twilight of a glorious career, joyfully building a new one in the movies, will stand side-by-side — Madame Schumann-Heink, 74, and Carol Ann Beery, 4, daughter of Wallace Beery. (KFI, 6:30-7:30)

* * *

KHJ AT 7 O'CLOCK will air nationwide a tribute to the Salvation Army. Humorist Irvin S. Cobb, Poet Edgar Guest and Tenor Michael Bartlett will head a long list of notables to perform. David Broekman's orchestra will lend support.

TOMORROW FOUR performances of Handel's Christmas oratorio, "The Messiah," are to be broadcast: The Radio City Music Hall, KFI-NBC, 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.; the Latter Day Saints choir of Independence, Mo., KHJ-CBS, 10:45 to 11:30 a. m.; the Glendale Oratorio society, under the direction of Charles L. Munro, KNX, 2 to 4 p. m., and the Ford concert, KHJ-CBS, 6 to 7 p. m.

BUREAU MAPS CONVENTION

Plans for the Orange county farm bureau's first convention will be laid at a meeting of the ways and means committee of the bureau Monday afternoon at the farm bureau offices, Executive Secretary R. D. Flaherty said today.

The convention will be held on Jan. 20 and 21 while Ray Wagner, vice president of the state farm bureau, is in Orange county on an inspection tour.

Farm bureau platforms worked out at the recent national and state conventions will be the principal topic of discussion at the two-day meeting, Mr. Flaherty said.

Plans for adopting the measures propounded by the state and national bureaus will be laid, and steps taken to put the procedures into operation in Orange county.

L. A. Bortz, newly-elected president of the Orange county bureau, will preside as chairman of the ways and means committee Monday.

EDITORIAL PAGE

December 21, 1935

This newspaper stands for a reunited people, for independence in all things political, and for honest journalism in its news and editorial columns.

Santa Ana Journal

Published daily except Sunday by Santa Ana Journal, Inc., at 117 E. Fifth street, Santa Ana, Calif. John P. Scripps, E. F. Elfstrom, Roy Pinkerton and Ray W. Felton, sole stockholders. Mr. Felton, editor; Mr. Elfstrom, manager.

Subscription rates: By mail, $6 a year; by carrier, 50 cents a month; from newsboys and newstands, 2 cents a copy. Entered as second-class matter May 1, 1935, at the postoffice at Santa Ana, California, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for publication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited to it in this paper, and also the local news published here.

To Shelley Horton:

You've had a fine year as master councilor of the DeMolay chapter. I'm sure you'll give Darrell Gaebe a boost to start him off on a term as successful as yours has been.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Captain Gallipo and Assistants:

You have been diligent during the past few weeks in making preparations to bring joy and happiness into homes which might otherwise be neglected, and to the faithful force which presides over the kettles. Christmas will be happier because of your unselfish efforts.

COL V. ORANGE.

To Orange Growers:

Cheer up, every cloud has a golden lining. That's why you are in the orange business. Yours for a bigger and better oranges, prorates, better rates, and higher prices for what you have to sell. It's a long season that has no improvement.

COL V. ORANGE.

To Everybody:

Whether you have agreed with me or not in the various civic problems I want to wish you a Merry Christmas, and personal and community prosperity for the coming year, with Santa Ana happy and contented and at peace with all the world, including Ethiopia and Italy.

COL V. ORANGE.

To Mrs. Average Housewife:

You may be 99.34 per cent sold on contract bridge, women's clubs or golf. But don't forget to baste that turkey, squeeze the cranberries, and trim the trees so Wednesday will be as satisfyingly old-fashioned as though your place was still "in the home."

COL. V. ORANGE.

To San Juan Capistrano:

May I have a place in your Christmas sanctuary and the peace and joy that go with it. Your quaint observance of the holiday season surely will attract a large number of visitors if it is as colorful and interesting as advance notices indicate.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Postmaster Harwood and Crew:

You are doing good work receiving and distributing holiday packages. The bird in your organization is ready for the early worm and there has been very little congestion. You catch them coming and going, and Santa Claus will arrive in time due to the diligence and efficiency of your crew.

COL V. ORANGE.

To The Board of Supervisors:

The bond election, win, lose or draw, was quite an affair, now that it's over. It was a shame that your efforts to provide flood control and water for us all failed, but in one way the election was an unqualified success. It pulled a lot of Ethiopians out from the woodpile into the open, where we could all get a look at them. Win or not win, the fight was fine while it lasted. And Merry Christmas to you, too.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To the Orange County Coast Association:

Your Christmas lighting program is the holly berries. Any group which can get so many communities together in a co-ordinated lighting program is worthy of praise. Your decoration idea is fine. We've seen Huntington Beach, Laguna, San Clemente and Seal Beach, and acknowledge that such a program, which gives such pleasure to so many, is worthy of applause.

Keep up the good work, Coast association!

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Jupiter Pluvius:

Jupe, old boy, you've been neglecting us. I understand that you are the rain god, but with the continued dry weather I've been wondering if you haven't gone off on a spree and forgotten your duty. Just because we voted dry at the water bond election the other day, don't get the idea that we want you to allocate our share of the showers to some other part of the state. We may not have a dam to store surplus water in, but our farm lands are so dry they probably can absorb all the moisture you care to send us right now. So come on back to your office, Pluvius old boy, and turn on the spigot. We need rain!

COL V. ORANGE.

To Santa Claus:

I am sorry to have to distract your attention just at the busiest season of your year, but I hope you can take a moment to answer a question that has been bothering me for some time. I've asked all my friends and relatives what they would like to have for Christmas, and I think they will be pretty well taken care of through your generosity. The question that is now worrying me is this: Has anyone, at any time during the centuries you have been on the job, asked you what you would like to have for Christmas? I'd really like to know, Santa, and if you'll tell me what you want, I'll put your gift beside my stocking so you can pick it up on Christmas eve. I'd like to be the first person to send Santa Claus a Christmas gift.

COL V. ORANGE.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

I was musing today over the hardness of city sidewalks. Especially if one has trampled them a long stretch in quest of a job. Too, that stuffily imprisoned feeling we acquire, penned in by stone, steel and marble. And the way faces grow flintily hard as though honed on flagstone.

I know a highly geared industralist who flees the turmoil every spring. Back to his prairie town. At daylight each morning he sneaks out to walk barefoot through the dewy grass on his mother's lawn. The feel of damp soil restores much of his sanity and a modicum of faith.

A large slice of New York's mass jitters, I imagine, is the itch of bare toes for the trickle of cool sand on the beaches, for a deep breath of untainted air from a sylvan glade. Or to sink over the boot-tops in a swiftly cool mountain stream with a fighting fish on the end of the line.

And to continue a rural rhapsody: To scout through the brush and kick up a cotton-tail out of an ant-laden, rotting log. Or loaf through the brown hills with a bird dog running forward, dropping back pointing. Or sleep on the ground, swapping sighs with a sturdy oak. Where stars grow friendly.

The mail brings a cascade of cussless exclamations since recalling the "Snarlfrocket" of a character in our town as a choice and unprofane expletive. I like best "Helvella Crispa!" It should satisfy the urge of the most calloused cusser. And is purely scientific, being the name of a harmless mushroom sprouting in the Lorenzo valley in California.

Zaz Hitchcock initiated me into the savories of Armenian cooking several years ago and now and again I have a yen for such a meal. The Armenian cafe is seldom crowded, never showy, preserves more than the majority the "foreign atmosphere" and is reasonably tariffed. It offers for sturdy trenchermen such palate-provoking yum yums as lamb and tomato chunks skewered on a spike; lamb brains dipped in egg and fried in a butter; beans stewed with vegetables, cooked in olive oil and served cold; rice and chopped onions wrapped in grape vine leaves; squash stuffed with highly spiced chopped meats and native bread cooked in honey with a layer of a velvety ambrosial white paste. The waiters are inclined to stifle a yawn when asked for Turkish coffee. It has become a threadbare gag. Like asking a tall man: "How's the weather up there?"

Somehow I think of Chatham Square as the scene of "The face on the Barroom Floor." There's a corner swing door spot in the area that suggests: "It was a balmy summer evening and a goodly crowd was there; that well nigh filled Joe's barroom on the corner of the square." I dropped in a recent evening with a prowling companion. A few bar flies buzzed at wet-ringed tables. But "no goodly crowd was there." My friend ordered a beer. I asked for a charge of mineral water. "Getting tough, eh?" observed the barman. I roared. Indeed any time a Bowery barkeeper waxes facetious I'll laugh, ho, ho, my fool head off.

I'm a pushover, too, for those cluttery nooks bearing the label "Jokes, Tricks, Puzzles." There are usually more clerks than customers. Furtive, Broadway clad fellows as mysterious as their commercialized evanishments. They offer a professional polish to their: "Take a card—any card!" You feel that could you perform the trick as expertly, you'd be the life of the party, any party—they have me doing it So usually you buy.

The greatly sought Alexander Woollcott is reputedly the most trying of celebrities for social anglers to land. There are scarcely a half dozen homes where he will consent to become the ray of sunshine—which he usually is. He is available for gatherings at Neysa McMein's, the George S. Kaufmans' and Edna Ferber's among the slim list. His shyness is not bunkered in modsety but rather he finds most people dull. Many are not so fortunate. We have to accept the counterfeits in the common currency of life to touch a little of its real gold. Or something like that.

Earl Benham tells of the filling station boy who sold a negro a gallon of gas and handing him his change asked: "How's your oil?" The negro replied: "We's all right, how's you all?" and drove off.

CAKE FOR PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21. (AP)—A 100-pound Christmas cake which took six months to make and is valued at $1000 was presented Friday to President Roosevelt by the citizens of California. The presentation was made by Representative Stubbs (D., Cal.) who said it was made by an Ojai, Cal., baker named W. C. Baker.

The British Imperial airways has increased its mileage threefold and its traffic-ton mileage sevenfold in the last 10 years.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Among both Republican and Democratic leaders the Townsendite threat of a third party is considered bluff. The declaration is viewed as a strategical maneuver to frighten the two old parties to come to terms on the old-age pension movement. . . . The big guessing game now current in official Washington is how much money the President will ask for next year's relief in his forthcoming budget. Speculation ranges from zero to a high of $2,000,000,000. . . Justice Louis D. Brandeis is a good advertisement for the dental profession. Although 79 years old he still has most of his own teeth. He has them examined and cleaned each month. . . . A. B. MacGregor, in charge of a rural resettlement nursery, was once a gardener for the king of England and J. P. Morgan. MacGregor was on the transient relief rolls when he obtained his government job. . . . William Bray, youthful secretary to Postmaster General Jim Farley, is the only secretary to a high official in the capital who knows by sight every member of congress. Bray's knowledge is a great service to his boss as it insures the latter of never being caught at a loss for the name of a congressional caller. . . . Signs of the times: Shoe production this year is up 3.5 per cent over last. The output of low-priced part-leather and part-fabric shoes has more than doubled.

WHITE HOUSE GIFTS

Christmas at the White House means an increased flow of gifts. From the time of George Washington, Presidents have been the year round recipients of every conceivable variety of gift. When President Harding died he left a whole storeroom of personal gifts. Several trucks were needed to carry away the gifts given Coolidge and Hoover during their incumbency. . . . Captoin over an appeal for funds in the Democratic Digest—"A Penny a Day Keeps the Elephant Away." . . . Massachusetts congressmen have brought word to the capital that ex-Gov. Alvin T. Fuller, of Sacco-Vanzetti fame, is planning to seek another term on the Republican ticket next year. . . . According to figures just compiled by the labor department workers have filed suits aggregating $500,000,000 for ailments due to industrial diseases since the introduction of workers' compensation laws in the U. S. . . . Reason for the American Liberty League's sudden announcement that it would file with congress quarterly statements of income and expenditures was the tip that New Dealers were planning a congressional probe of the organization's finances. By voluntarily opening its books, league masterminds hope they can forestall an investigation. . . . Five states have already submitted plans to Surgeon General Cummings for obtaining grants from the $8,000,000 fund set up in the social security act for health promotion. The states are, Utah, Arizona, California, Colorado and New Mexico.

TUGWELL TAPE

The personnel office of Tugwell's Resettlement administration still is checking the credentials of "applicants" who have been holding down their jobs for months. Meantime, new workers wait six and eight weeks after the job begins before getting their first pay check. . . . Uncle Dan Roper is purring with pride over the first fruits of his new trade plans with Latin America. Chile's undersecretary of aviation will drop down from the skies next week on a trip from Santiago to buy two new U. S.-made amphibian planes for Chilean air lines. . . . Holger Cahill, big boss of Hopkins' art projects, was born in Iceland. Life's biggest thrills for Cahill lie in uncovering old American art objects. . . . Pet hobby of Nels Anderson, big boss of Hopkins' labor relations, is compiling a history of Mormon settlements in Utah. As a youthful hobo, Anderson was given a job by a Mormon and later joined the Mormon church. . . . Delegates to the recent Washington meeting of the Republican national committee are wondering who wrote the anonymous letter each of them received setting forth 46 reasons for nominating Herbert Hoover. . . . Charley Curtis, Hoover's vice president, who has been taken back into the party councils, forecasts that Landon will come to the convention with the largest number of pledged delegates. . . . There are only 200 workers in the entire rural electrification administration. . . . TVA's Director Dave Lilienthal reports a new trick played by private utilities fighting extension of TVA lines. They establish a "holding station" by the simple device of unloading a Diesel generator in an area they want to preempt.

MORE VULNERABLE

Some of the President's shrewdest political advisers want him to ease up in attacks on bankers; instead concentrate his fire on utility interests. The argument is that with the utilities resisting government regulations under the holding company act, they now offer a more vulnerable opposition than the bankers. . . . Earl J. Christenberry, secretary to the late Kingfish Huey Long, is doing publicity work for the Townsendites. Friends of Christenberry say he received $2500 to manage the recent Townsend convention in Chicago. . . . Assistant Attorney General John Dickinson believes in taking no chances. He keeps a list of all callers and the subjects he discussed with them. . . . Why bother about playing the stock market. The 1933 special Graf Zeppelin stamps, sold at a face value of 50 cents, are now selling at prices from $4 to $8. The stamp was taken off the postoffice list last June. The increase in price is the most rapid for any U. S. stamp in years.

Director J. Edgar Hoover has sent out a request to radio amateurs to aid his G-men in testing the short-wave transmission of crime reports. The bureau of investigation is conducting experiments with a view to setting up a super-powered radio station in Washington for broadcasting crime flashes to federal agents. . . . Secretary Harold Ickes sets aside one hour daily for receiving members of his staff to talk over inter-office problems. Any subordinate wishing to see him may make an appointment during that hour. . . . Rail Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman has confided to associates that unless congress makes his post permanent he will decline another appointment if offered. His coordinating authority expires June 16, 1936, after which he will revert to his regular status as a member of the interstate commerce commission. . . . Representative Vito Marcantonio, insurgent Republican from New York, is planning to demand a congressional investigation of the work-relief administration in Manhattan.

Handwriting In Land of the Rising Sun

OPPOSITION to independence is rapidly developing among the Filipinos themselves. With the coveted prize almost within reach its charm is not so winning. Any change in political status involves business and financial adjustments which run deep into the social and economic structure of the islands.

Instead of independence, with all its uncertainties and burdens, the drift appears to be toward a commonwealth state, much after the plan of the various large units of the British Empire. In this way Filipinos would get the benefits of freedom and avoid the dangers. Uncle Sam would assume all the danger and get no benefits. Not a bad deal—for our little brown brothers.

* * *

If America will not do this the Filipinos are thinking of getting under the wings of the British Empire. Or even of joining the Dutch East Indies empire. Any port in a storm would be welcome to them. And, as early as this, they view with much alarm the troubled skies of the Far East.

* * *

Many observers are dolefully predicting Japanese advances in the Philippines. Japan loudly disclaims any such intentions. But then, no country ever does come forward with an avowedly aggressive policy. Always imperialistic policy is cloaked with pleas of necessity for national defense.

* * *

One thing which should be of no concern to us is the possibility of Japanese seizure of the islands. Britain may be much disturbed by such prospect. She does not want Japanese advances toward Singapore and the Straits Settlements. But that is Britain's worry, not ours. Any way you look at this matter it is full of dynamite for the peace of the Far East.

There seems to be only one way out. And that is for the white man to admit frankly that his day in the Orient is done.

If Britain wants to contest this point, if she can not see the handwriting in the land of the rising sun, if she tries to block the wheels of destiny, world explosions will usher in the most appalling racial conflicts in history.

But, if America withdraws speedily and completely, and if England follows the same sensible course, there could be no limits placed on the peace and safety in the Far East. A new and better era would dawn on harassed mankind.

Dewey's fateful victory at Manila will never cease its echoes until the curtain falls on the white man's silly pretension to power in the Orient.

SKINNY SKRIBBLES

Around and About Town

With C. F. (Skinny) SKIRVIN

This has been a tough day to get going. Too much Santa Claus, flood control, bits of politics, and an occasional oasis conversation. The day was far advanced when the keys on the typewriter started to click. Just one of those days when it was difficult to get your feet on solid ground. Guess I'll take time out to get a cup of coffee. Maybe the going will be smoother.

* * *

Well, maybe I'll have to get something stronger than coffee. There are a few sparks missing. The old "boat" isn't running right. Every encounter is a flood control subject. The issue is too dry this morning to interest me. Then the postoffice management reduced my buying power one dollar by telling me the box rent was due. If Farley puts that dollar in the campaign fund I'll feel like a good patron has been imposed upon.

* * *

But there's no use gettin' sore right in the face of the holiday season, when grouches are supposed to be on vacation. So, let's accept the verities of life on the basis of what is to be will be, whether it happens or not, and most of the worries will be much smaller than they look the morning after.

Time out to discuss refrigeration with the "boss." Plenty of room. That, however, has not been my trouble. How to fill a refrigerator suggests itself as one of the duties of a thoughtful provider. But if it "ain't gonna rain no more" won't need refrigeration. What I'll need is saturation.

The Rev. Harry Owings took the simple story of the birth of the Saviour from the second chapter of Matthew and Luke, and revealed to a group of Breakfast club members in the plain paternal pathos of Bible history, the incidents which turned eager eyes upward, and recalled to many the story as they heard it long ago from mother and Sunday school teacher. Then they began to wonder why they had not heard the story more often, and in their own hearts knew it wasn't the fault of the minister.

Fred Ross gets a copy of the old home paper, printed at some place back in Governor Landon's state. My recollection is that her name was Alma. Fred says he lived in a small town where they had a big time. It was in those days when the church was the center of social life. He used to go to church and "pinch" a few apples and watermelons afterwards, attended ice cream socials, had bobsled rides, and celebrated the Fourth of July. Looking back over that experience Fred thought he had had a fairly good time, but now comes the old home paper to his door to tell him that the only moving picture house in the town has been closed and the populace thirst for entertainment is compelled to drive ten miles to see Mae West or Clark Gable. The editor has a different perspective of entertainment than Fred had when he lived in Alma.

Ted Craig was over from Brea last Friday to look over the Christmas situation, exchange a few ideas with old friends, and do a little political shadow boxing, especially as it pertained to the recent rumor about his resigning from the assembly speakership. About the best I could get out of Ted was that he believed we were going to have a Merry Christmas along most of the lines, and the lines which held out the least promise were the ones he was trying to avoid.

And just about this time Jimmy Utt chanced along and approved of everything that Ted said. That's what you can call team work. If Nels Edwards had been there I'd thought it about time to call the roll.
